WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieut. Cyrus Bettis, injured in an airplane crash near Bellefonte, Pa., August 23, died this morning at 9:05 from meningitis induced by his injuries.

Bettis, who was brought here from Bellefonte by army airplane ambulance last week, to receive treatment at Walter Reed Hospital, suffered a relapse yesterday afternoon and lapsed into unconsciousness from which he did not recover.

Lieut. Bettis, flying with two companions over Pennsylvania a week ago Monday, became lost in a fog and his plane struck Jack's Mountain near Bellefonte. Despite a fractured leg, a double fracture of the jaw and other injuries, Bettis crawled from the wreckage and made his way several miles from the scene of the crash. He was found by two boys and taken to a hospital at Bellefonte.

After he was brought to Washington he was believed to be recovering rapidly, despite the seriousness of his injuries. Yesterday, however, inflammation of the nerve sheaths set in and Bettis, his strength exhausted by his harrowing experiences, was unable to combat the new complications.

Mrs. John Bettis, mother of the aviator, is due to reach Washington today from Port Huron, Mich. She left her home there yesterday.

Lieut. Bettis was born Jan. 2, 1893. He entered the aviation service as a private Jan. 23, 1918 and was commissioned as a second lieutenant July 1, 1920.

Lieut. Bettis won the Pulitzer air speed trophy in October 1925 setting new world's speed records for 100 and 200 kilometer distances.

"It seems the affection she has been appraising in newspapers is worth at least $100,000," Wright said in speaking of his wife's suit before he left Taliesen. "It is humiliating not to see the affection valued at a million but I am damaged goods."

State Troopers Fire at Crowd Wounding Five When

MANVILLE, R. I., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Thirty-five members of the 103rd Field Artillery, National Guard, arrived by motor truck from Providence early today to reinforce eleven state police who last night battled with 500 strikers of the Manville-Jencks Cotton Mill.

All of the eleven troopers were cut by stones hurled by the strikers, and five of the strikers, according to police, were wounded when the troopers returned fire which they said came from the crowd.

After the rioting of the evening order was restored and quiet prevailed up to dawn today. The reinforcements from Providence, under side arms and in command of Major Rollins, arrived at 1:30 a. m. and moved into the mill which they will patrol.

Their orders were to protect property at the plant and it was understood that they will not carry out any patrolling in the town itself.

State police said shot guns were fired by the strikers as they advanced to storm a bridge leading

MISSING WITNESSES WILL NOT EMBARRASS GRAND JURY PROBE

Testimony Furnished By Depositions—Roach
In Chicago

CANTON, O., Sept. 1.—Failure of some of the witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the Stark County grand jury probing the murder of Don R. Mellett will not handicap the investigation, Prosecutor C. B. McClintock, declared today.

Testimony of the missing witnesses already has been before the jurors in depositions taken by the investigators, McClintock said. Further efforts however will be made to locate them so they may be available for the trial jury.

Among the missing witnesses are three women, called from Cleveland to tell of Patrick McDermott, missing "key man."

Joseph R. Roach, Chicago criminal investigator and "clean up" man today left for Chicago together with Detective Michael Glenn, who has been assisting him.

H. J. Burton, special detective, returned to Columbus to await further developments.

Roach will return to Cleveland September 16 to assist U. S. District Attorney A. E. Bernstein who will prosecute several Canton men charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

The report of the grand jury is expected Friday or Saturday with the possibility that indictments charging the murder of Mellett will be returned.

The day was designated as farmers day.

Judging of percherons, short-horns and guernseys, yorkshires, and merinos; class B dorsets and south downs sheep was a special attraction for the farmers.

The attendance today was expected to reach 70,000. Last year's turnout on Wednesday was 66,917. The visitors yesterday numbered 40,181 or 493 less than the number for Tuesday last year.

Secretary of State Thad Brown late today was to present a cup to the winner of the feature harness race.

YOUNG LEADS RACE FOR GOVERNOR OVER FRIEND RICHARDSON

Shortridge Leading Senator Fight Over
Clarke

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieut. Governor C. C. Young had a lead of 11,063 votes over Gov. Friend Richardson early today in the primary race for the Republican nomination for governor.

Returns from 3023 precincts in the state gave Young 92,164 votes, Richardson 81,101 and Rex B. Goodsell 35,500.

In the primaries for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator, Samuel M. Shortridge, incumbent, was leading the field. He had 69,670 votes, while Robert M. Clarke, whom Senator Hiram Johnson has championed, had 57,356. Walter Lineberg was a poor third and presumably out of the race with 20,205.

Shortridge's apparent victory indicated that the Coolidge administration policies had received the support of the party in California, his backers said. Shortridge is a champion of the world court, while Clarke was an avowed opponent of American entrance.

The Democratic primaries had few contests.

DEPUTY TO SERVE IN COURT'S ABSENCE

Probate Judge S. C. Wright begins a ten-day vacation Thursday morning during which time Deputy Probate Judge Allegra Hawes will assume the bench and perform the other various duties of the court.

Judge and Mrs. Wright will motor to the city which was his former home, Idaville, Ind., to spend the vacation.

Ham and eggs was the breakfast menu for both homes. There was a breakfast food and plenty of coffee. The bread was buttered.

Carson at noon will have chicken, corn on the cob and dessert. Nelson will have a large and thick steak and the usual vegetables which go to make up a meal. Pies feature the menu at Nelson's home. This may be the last time in twenty days that the couple will have a chance to have anything more than unbuttered bread and water.

"We're going to fill up today," Nelson said. "The farmer doesn't build up much of a waist line and we'll probably need a reserve when we get to munching nothing but bread."

"They won't starve in jail," Sheriff W. D. Smith said today. "I will see that there is a plentiful supply of bread on hand at all times and they can have all the water they want."

"Then when the first twenty days are over they will go on regular prison fare which Mrs. Smith prepares. They will get plenty of food during that period."

The sentence provides the two will serve twenty days on the bread and water diet, twenty days on regular prison fare, then the remaining twenty days on bread and water diet again.

WARSHIPS AND MARINES SAFEGUARD AMERICAN LIVES AND PROPERTY IN NICARAGUAN REVOLT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—With three U. S. warships and a landing party of marines guarding American lives and property endangered by the Nicaraguan revolution the state department today awaited reports on the impending battle in El bluff.

The U. S. S. Galveston is in Bluefields harbor in the shadow of El bluff where the conflicting native forces are expected to decide control of the gulf coast.

Both the Galveston and marines occupying Bluefields have been ordered to maintain strict neutrality, confining their activities to protection of American interests. To avoid direct conflict between American and Nicaraguan forces the American commander has declared Bluefields city a neutral zone.

The U. S. S. Rochester, flagship of the special service squadron has notified the state department of its arrival at Bluefields but failed to confirm reports of Americans killed there.

According to diplomatic sources the state department is using informal good offices to induce General Chamorro to retire in favor of a constitutional government. Chamorro who seized the power by a military coup last November is not recognized by the United States.

Some concern was apparent here over Chamorro's failure to answer the sharp note delivered him by American charge d'affaires Dennis last week.

Though Chamorro's action in appealing to the league of nations against alleged Mexican aid to the revolutionists creates a delicate situation, it is believed in informed circles here that the league will not interfere. Article twenty-one of the league covenant, recognizing the Monroe Doctrine's prohibition of European interference in western hemisphere affairs will prevent any league action, it was said.

KNIGHT FIRES FIRST ROUND IN BATTLE TO DEFEAT PRIMARY LAW

Brief Filed With Secretary Of State Declares System
Makes It Impossible For Poor Man To Seek Office

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 1.—The first round in the fight to knock out the direct primary system in Ohio began today when a brief branding the primary system as "highly dangerous to public interest" and certain to result in "corruption" was filed with the secretary of state.

The argument was filed by Charles L. Knight, Akron publisher, in support of the proposed amendment to the constitution repealing the primary law.

Defenders of the primary today, meanwhile, were preparing an argument against the repeal amendment. It must be filed by tomorrow.

Under the present primary system it is impossible for a poor man to be a candidate for state office, Knight asserted in the brief.

"The primary is highly dangerous to public interest and must result eventually in corruption," he charged. "It is not the rule of the people."

SENATOR SMITH IS AGAIN NOMINATED

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 1.—U. S. Senator E. D. Smith, Democrat, and world court advocate was re-nominated in yesterday's primary, returns from 1267 precincts of the 1371 in the state indicated today.

The vote was: Smith 61,524; Brown 54,617. Brown stood opposed to entry into the world court.

N. B. Dial, third candidate polled approximately 30,000 votes. Although Smith's lead was small political observers predicted returns from the 104 remaining precincts would not overcome it.

Backs Eby, Kruskamp and Oshner, End Alber and Tackles Nesser and Cox of last year's freshman team also kicked the scholarship goal.

There is some doubt regarding the status of "Buster" McMillan, star frosh back and Herb Slough, substitute center.

Tom Albanese, fast freshman quarter, definitely is ineligible.

Ruins In Wake

HORTA, Azores Islands, Sept. 1.—Twelve persons were killed, approximately 100 were injured and hundreds are homeless after an earthquake which spread ruin here.

Order has been restored and by yesterday evening a temporary lighting service was started to provide light for the two small parks where large numbers were gathered. Beyond the parks Horta appeared to be a city of dead, with troops and firemen patrolling the streets between the ruined houses.

The earth shock came at 9 a. m. yesterday.

Earthquakes have been experienced on the island since time immemorial, although they have seemed to increase in frequency during the past four years. The last one felt was April 5. But never in the memory of any living person here has there been such a catastrophe as the present one.

Confusion swept the city. Thousands ran aimlessly through the streets. Automobiles dashed at a furious pace. Clouds of dust rose from the fallen houses, obscuring the scene.

When the dust subsided an appalling picture presented itself. Instead of the quiet little town with its white-washed houses against the hills—in reality extinct volcanoes—all were in ruin.

The injured persons were taken to hospitals. One man had just left his home to go to work at the custom house when the shock came. He ran back to find his home demolished and his wife and child dead in the debris. Had the shock come during the night the death toll would have been much greater.

The authorities, aided by troops and firemen at once took command of the situation commandeering automobiles to transport the injured and working all the day and into the night to restore order.

The island of Fayal, with its town of Horta, capital of one of the Azorean districts is about thirty miles in circumference. In addition to the town there are several outlying villages, the total population of the island being about 30,000. It is situated in a seismic zone, as are the other islands of the group with the exception of Flores and Corvo.

At one time the volcanoes were active and much damage was done by outbursts.

It seemed that a seismic wave coming from the southwest yesterday struck the island on its eastern side and ran along in a northerly direction through the channel which separates Fayal from the island of Pico. Taking the neighborhood of Petreia as a starting point, the wave left a trail of demolished houses and cracked roads at it made its way along the east coast toward Lombardo Pico.

The port was not affected, shipping firms carrying on business as usual.

LISBON, Sept. 1.—Thus far ten persons were known to have been killed and about 250 severely injured and others slightly injured in an earthquake which rocked Horta in the Azores group yesterday.

The population still was in panic stricken today and feared a repetition of the quake, according to a dispatch from Horta. Some families were without food and many had no shelter.

Horta is the capital of the island of Fayal in the Azores group. In 1900, the latest figures available, the population of the town was about 7,000. The population of Fayal was about 25,000. Opposite Horta is the best anchorage and harbor in the Azores group. The area of Fayal is about sixty-five miles. The Azores are Portuguese and about 800 miles west of Portugal.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The Horta, Azores, correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs that the American and British communities there are safe following the earthquake which devastated the island.

Submission of 1927 budgets to the County Budget Commission by the various taxing districts and political sub-divisions in Greene County, has been delayed by the real estate re-appraisal, it is announced at the County Auditor's office.

The commission was granted a sixty-day extension of time to consider the 1927 budget by the state tax commission in view of the conflicting appraisal.

Health Hints by the Father of Physical Culture

The compression of the shoe renders any movement on the part of the toes almost impossible, so that the work of locomotion is almost wholly performed by the muscles which act at the ankle joint. Thus, through disuse, the muscles at the toes largely lose their power of movement—movement which originally was of wide range. This fact is well borne out in the case of persons whose hands through one cause or another have become useless have partially succeeded in training the feet to take their place. Furthermore, if it be considered that certain muscles maintain the large arch of the foot the importance of keeping these muscles strong will be evident. The arch of the foot, besides preserving the adjacent parts from jar due to impact in walking, have underlying them nerves and blood-vessels and other tissues which are injured when the arch is broken down and the weight of the body presses upon them.

The broken-down arch affects one's gait, making it shuffling and ungainly. On the other hand, the arch that is high and well marked besides lending grace and shapeliness to the foot gives elasticity and firmness to the step. Exercises that bring the muscles of the foot into use should be indulged in to strengthen these parts.

"Bunions, though generally regarded as a kind of corn, are really an inflammation and swelling of the bursa mucosa (this is a membrane lining the joint and secreting a lubricating fluid) at the inside of the ball of the great toe. It often produces a distortion of the metatarsal joint of the great toe, and is produced by the same causes as corns. The treatment is, warm foot baths when the part is very tender and irritable; at other times frequent cold baths, and when horny substance resembling a corn appears externally the application of caustic."

Sore iteases, big joints and corns, when no positive means are adopted for their cure or removal, may often be made tolerably comfortable by having the shoe carefully adapted to fit them. A most effective treatment for feet that are "balled-up" is to soak them every night for about ten minutes in hot, very soapy water; after which they should be rinsed and dried carefully.

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is the highest building in the United States.

LACKEY-STEPHENS WEDDING CEREMONY

Miss Leota Stephens became the bride of Mr. A. Clark Lackey, Mount Airy, N. C., son of Dr. and Mrs. B. L. Lackey, Home Ave., this city, with a pretty ceremony performed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Stephens, near Wilmington, Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

The vows were taken in the presence of fifty relatives and friends of the couple. Proceeding the ceremony, Miss Lorena Stephens, sister of the bride, gave two vocal numbers, "O Promise Me" and "All For You." Mrs. Henry Spear played the accompaniment and the wedding march. The bride and groom came down the stairs, led by little Miss Mary Esther Lackey, sister of the bridegroom, who wore green.

Miss Thelma Stephens, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, walked next. She wore a charming creation of rose taffeta. She walked with Mr. Herman Wendlandt, Duluth, Minn., fraternity brother of Mr. Lackey, at Carnegie School of Technology, who was best man.

The bride and bridegroom came last. Miss Stephens was gown in white tulle, fashioned bouffant style, with tulle veil. She carried a large bouquet of bride's roses and lilies. The procession was met at the improvised altar, in the bow window of the living room, by President Edwin Jay, of Wilmington College, the bride's alma mater, who performed the ceremony. The single ring ceremony was used.

After the felicitations of the guests, refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Lackey left Tuesday evening by auto for Mount Airy, where they will reside. They will make the trip leisurely, and the journey will form their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Lackey's traveling costume consisted of a frock of Copenhagen mole, with blue coat, trimmed in blue, with black velvet hat and matching accessories.

Mr. Lackey is employed as draughtsman by the Mount Airy Granite Corporation. Both he and his bride are well known in this city, where their marriage is of interest. Mr. Lackey is a member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity and Mrs. Lackey is affiliated with Phi Kappa Sorority, Wilmington College.

LEESBURG COMPANY GETS CONTRACT FOR SHORT PAVING JOB

On its low bid of approximately $2,000, the A. R. Grandall Co., Leesburg, O., has been awarded the contract by the state highway department for the paving of three-tenths of a mile of the Cincinnati and Columbus Road through Spring Valley village with concrete.

Work on this section of the pike is scheduled to start in about a week and under the contract will be completed November 1.

Originally when bids were first received by the highway department on this particular stretch of the road, the only bid submitted was rejected.

Improvement of the eight and one-half mile strip of the pike from the Greene County to Warren County line is virtually finished. Only work remaining to be done is the repaving of several bridges and spreading the entire road with a coating of tar.

The road is passable from Spring Valley on but detours are still necessary from Xenia to Spring Valley, County Commissioners say.

Road is expected to be opened to traffic within the next thirty days.

SUSPENDS RIGHT OF AUTOIST TO DRIVE

His right to drive an automobile suspended for one year and a fine of $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving was the penalty imposed upon Harold Jenks, Towler Road, by Mayor John W. Prugh Wednesday morning. He pleaded guilty.

Jenks has been made the object of a three weeks' search by police since his disappearance August 8 following an auto accident at Main and West Sts., in which John Pyles, Dayton, sustained bruises about the head. He was not seriously injured.

Jenks abandoned his car and fled. No trace of him was discovered until his arrest Tuesday by Motorcycle Policeman Peter Shagin.

Police say Jenks has been in similar difficulty on several previous occasions.

MODERN WOMAN KNOWS LITTLE ABOUT NEEDLE EXCEPT FOR SEWING BUTTONS

When Xenia women decide they need a new dress, do they think of purchasing material and spending hours making the fork? Answer—They do not. That is, at least, the majority doesn't.

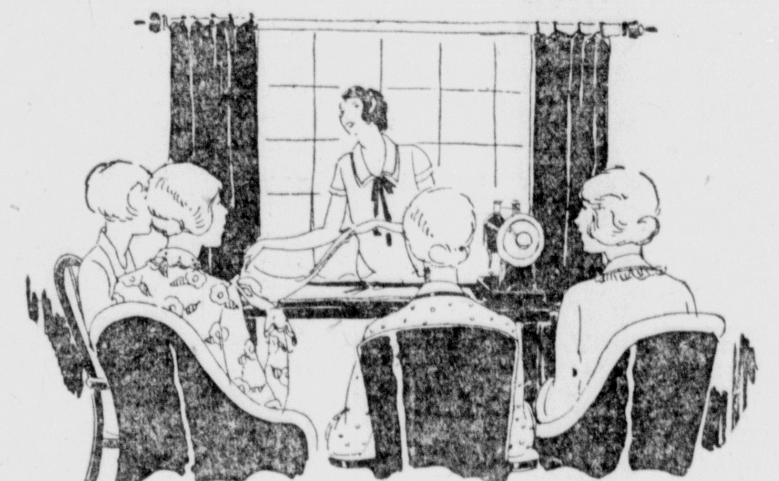

When Xenia women decide they need a new dress, do they think of purchasing material and spending hours making the fork? Answer—They do not. That is, at least, the majority doesn't.

The "ready-made" movement in women's clothes has progressed so far that a home-made garment is now almost a curiosity. The modern Xenia wife is more apt to mash her toes in a mob at the bargain counter than she is to stick her finger with a needle while sewing at home.

Xenia girls and women confine their sewing ability to fancy work or in the furnishing of their home. The interesting art of sewing will always intrigue the feminine sex to a certain extent and they will satisfy its appeal to them in various ways.

Women's clothes today are as simple as they have been for many years, and it is perfectly possible for a woman to make her own if she cares to. It is just a question of whether or not it pays.

Americans are learning more and more to hire services done by the expert. Thus the modern housewife buys her bread from a baker, her clothes from stores, and sends her washing to the laundry, just as the modern man hires a plumber to fix the water pipes and a painter to paint the house, instead of doing it himself.

STOP PYORRHEA

Tender, sore or bleeding gums, or gums fissured or receding from the teeth, indicate DEADLY PYORRHEA—the teeth's worst enemy. The disease first attacks the gums, later the tooth structure. As the gums recede from the teeth, pus pockets are formed, in which toxic poisons develop to be absorbed by the system and become the possible sources of other dangerous diseases. Don't let Pyorrhea endanger your health. The ravages of this terrible disease can be stopped, the gums healed and the poison the system has been absorbing checked, by the use of VINCENT'S PYORRHEA TREATMENT. DR. CHARLES DREES SUCCUMBS MONDAY AT BUENOS AIRES, S.A.

Word of the death Monday of Dr. Charles W. Drees, 75, retired Methodist Episcopal Church missionary and former Xenian, was contained in a brief dispatch from Buenos Aires, S. A., where he has resided a number of years.

Dr. Drees had given fifty years of uninterrupted service in the mission field while his widow, whom he married three years after his appointment as missionary, served forty-seven years. Dr. and Mrs. Drees were retired at their own request by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, two years ago.

Dr. Drees was born in Xenia, September 13, 1851, the son of Tobias and Maria Hypes Drees. Twenty years later he graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University. Boston University gave him the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1874 and Ohio Wesleyan gave him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1887. In April 1874, he went to Mexico and was assigned to missionary work in Pueblo where he built up a church and organized a boys' orphanage and theological school. Four years later Dr. William Butler retired, and Dr. Drees was made superintendent of the Mexico Central District, with headquarters in Mexico City.

In 1887, at the request of Bishop Fowler, he was transferred to the superintendency of the South American mission with headquarters at Buenos Aires. In the early days that mission included eight republics, most of which are now organized as separate conferences.

In caring for this large field, it is estimated that Dr. Drees traveled more than half a million miles—crossing the Andes, a number of times and made several trips around Cape Horn.

From 1900 to 1904, Dr. Drees was superintendent of the Porto Rico Mission, and then for five years superintendent of Buenos Aires and superintendent of the American Church and superintendent of the Uruguay district. In 1919, at the request of the American Bible Society, he was released from mission service and spent four years in Spain assisting in the revision of the Spanish New Testament.

In 1919 he founded the Spain Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

From 1919 until his retirement Dr. Drees was superintendent of Buenos Aires of the Eastern American Conference. Dr. and Mrs. Drees visited in Xenia a little more than a year ago.

Surviving are his widow, who is left in Buenos Aires with her sister, Miss Mary Combs. A brother of Dr. Drees, Frank Drees, Lansing, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Aiken, New York City, also survive. Miss Carrie Hypes, this city is a niece and Walter Jobe, Xenia is a grand-nephew, together with a number of other relatives here.

Funeral services and interment will be made in Buenos Aires.

GIRLS, USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juices of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any druggist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be brought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

"WEIRD RITES"

It has recently been reported that in the native quarters in Shanghai one thousand deaths have been occurring daily from cholera while just across the narrow streets which divide the native from the foreign residents of the same city there have been recorded only a total of two deaths during the whole period of the epidemic has been raging.

Further, we are informed the Chinese, in their desperation to check the ravages of the disease, are resorting to their ancient "weird rites" to end the awful dance of death.

Weird rites are romantic and interesting, but no sane person ever knew of them being effective against an epidemic of cholera, smallpox or any other disease. The Chinese are credited with having the oldest continuous government in the world, but they have been woefully lacking in scientific progress, especially in the line of healing.

If the Chinese could be induced to give up their impotent "weird rites" and adopt modern plumbing, and other modern sanitary devices calculated to prevent disease, it would be a great step forward.

PERISHABLE GOODS

All but an insignificant minority of the novelists of today, it is believed began their writing careers with the desire to achieve fame or to satisfy a creative urge as the main incentive. The making of money through the sale of their books was a secondary consideration, probably it was not until they had published one or two volumes that most of those who now depend upon their novels for a livelihood decided to make the writing of fiction their principal occupation.

Since fame, glory, and a place among the immortals of literature are the guerdons that have been most prominent in our novelists' minds, there is a good deal of irony in the statement made by Simon L. Nye, president of the American Booksellers' Association, at the annual convention of that organization in New York City that almost without exception a contemporary book of fiction, after having been published three months, is "practically dead, forgotten and awaiting removal to the bargain tables." Merit or lack of it has nothing to do with the phenomenon; admirable novels may last no longer than poor ones.

There is something pathetic in the idea of a writer putting the energy, the thought and feeling of a year or more into a work which, though excellent, should be so evanescent.

The situation directs attention to certain conditions of modern life which are not to our credit—the constant craving of the public for something new, even if the old is good and has not been utilized as it might be, and the tendency to follow a fad in an unreasoning way as a flock of sheep follow their leader.

Contemporary novels have become, from the bookseller's standpoint, perishable goods because the craze for novelty has advanced to the point where book buyers are not satisfied unless they can get fiction which is just off the press. Each wants to be able to talk about novels that are new and have not yet been discussed. Literature suffers grievously as a result.

HOME TOWN DEVELOPMENT

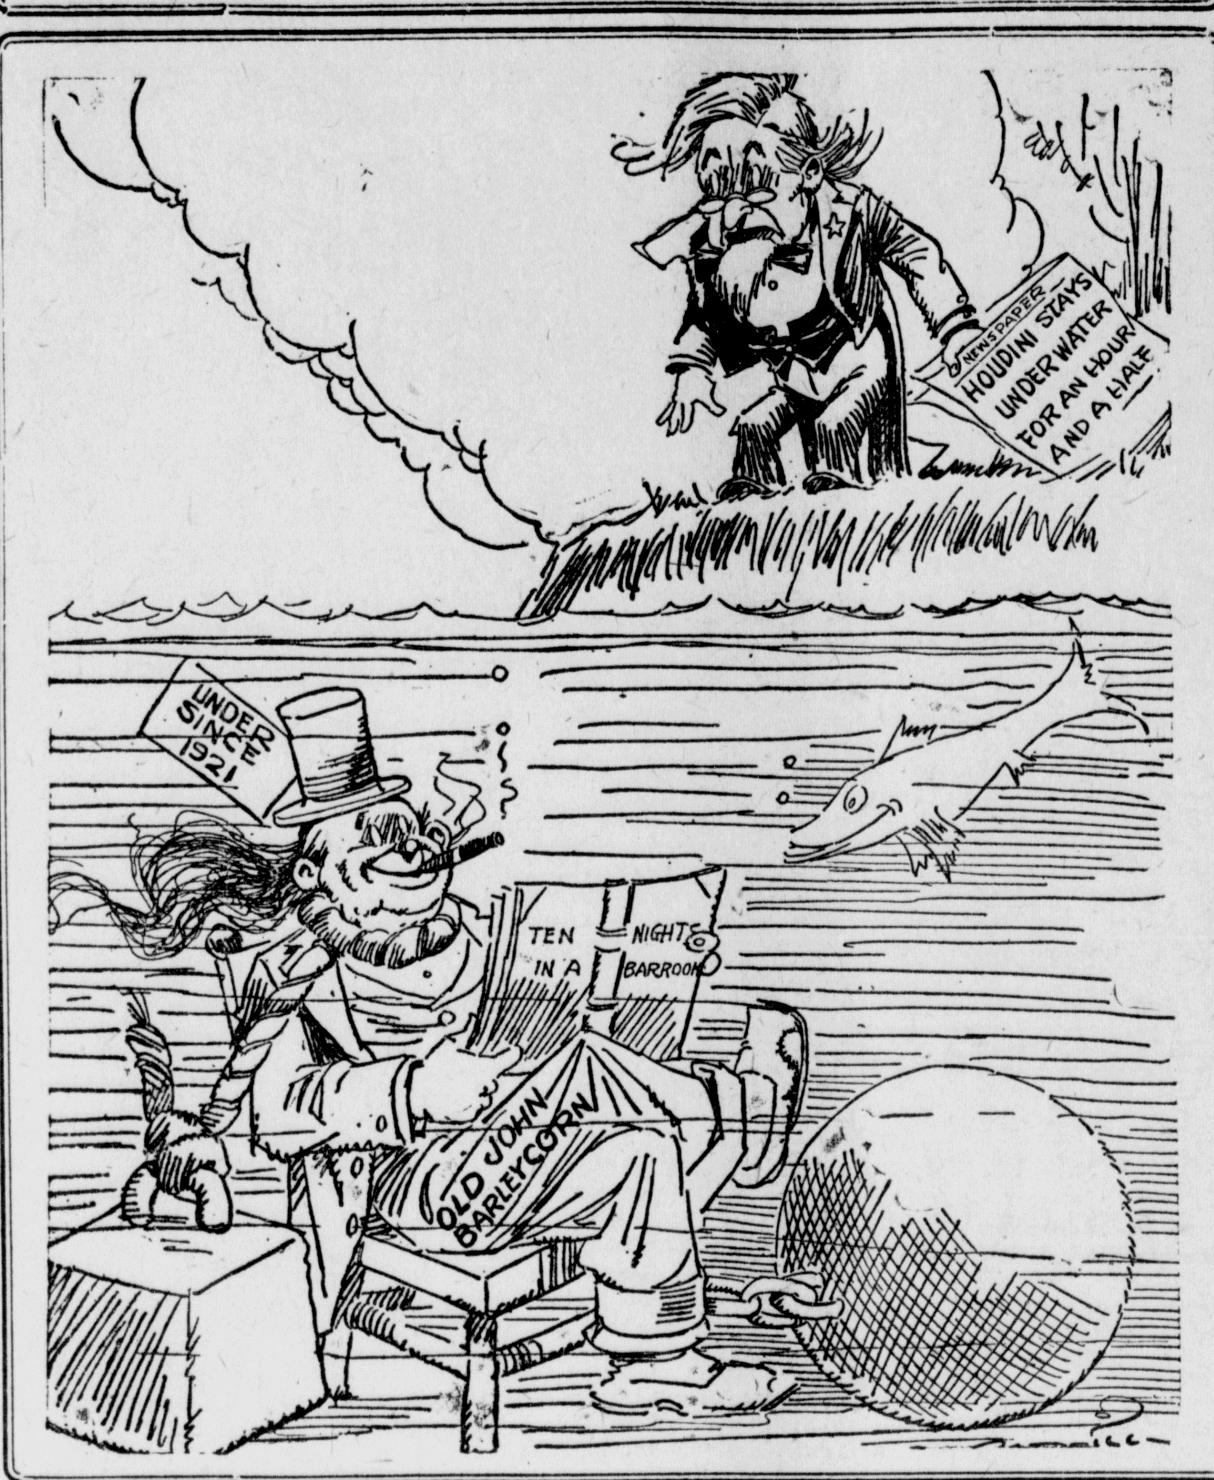

It used to be frequently said in smaller towns that it is the business of a good citizen to mind his own business, keep out of debt and avoid breaking the laws. It was commonly thought that if he did that, it was about all that could be expected of him, and he was conforming to the ideals of good citizenship.

But a community's development cannot be promoted in these times on any such limited basis. The fact that so many small town people still have this spirit, and expect to get along without doing anything particular to boost community movements, is one of the principal reasons why some towns do not get ahead faster.

Some must take hold and carry on the work of churches and fraternal societies. Some of the men with a special head for business need to work in some organization for the commercial and other needed development of the community. Some need to work in clubs for educational purposes, and for more interesting social activities. There is something that each one should do and we must all take hold to do something in these public lines, if we expect that a town is going to keep up with the game.

People should not act as if they were making a great sacrifice if they devote a little of their time to such purposes. We should love our home city so much, we should be so ambitious to see it go ahead, we should be so conscious of the gains that people who have initiative or ability or industry, should be willing to give some time each week to helping forward such causes.

USEFUL SALAD DRESSINGS

The salad for a "company" dinner should not be particularly nourishing, as such a meal usually begins with a fruit cup or a thin soup (hot or jellied), which is followed by a meat and vegetable course (often with a fish course served as well as a meat course); then comes a decorative salad, piquant rather than filling—merely lettuce, romaine, endive or some other green served with a really "dressy" dressing like one of the following:

Thousand Island Dressing: One-half cup of oil, the juice of one-half lemon, juice of one-half orange, one-half cup of mayonnaise dressing one teaspoon of grated onion, three teaspoons chopped parsley, one-fourth teaspoon each of mustard, salt and paprika, one teaspoon of Worcester Sauce, eight olives sliced and two hard-boiled eggs chopped. Mix dry ingredients, add them to the fruit juices, add the other ingredients, put all together in a fruit jar, adjust cover with rubber ring (two may be needed), then shake well till the mixture is smooth. Set in the icebox to keep cold till time to serve.

Another shaking may then be needed.

French Dressing with Variations: Two measures of oil to one of lemon juice or vinegar, is a good rule for a French dressing; add sugar (if liked), paprika, salt and dry mustard to suit individual preference. Peanuts, other chopped nutmeats, chopped olives or minced hard-boiled eggs, may all be added to French dressing to vary the flavor, as may also chopped onions, capers and minced green sweet peppers. Or you may vary it as follows:

Roquefort Cheese Dressing: Grate or crumble a two-inch cube of Roquefort cheese into one cupful of ordinary French dressing. East Indian Dressing: Add one-fourth teaspoon of curry powder and one-third cup of drained chutney or chopped pickle to one cupful of French dressing (or with one cupful of mayonnaise dressing).

Pimiento Cheese Dressing: Add two tablespoons of pimiento cream cheese to one cupful of French dressing and beat well.

Russian Dressing: Add two tablespoons of catsup or chili sauce to one cupful of French dressing and shake in a jar till mixed thoroughly.

SIDELIGHTS

ON
Greene County History

OLD CHILLICOTHE

Old Chillicothe, the site which is now occupied by the peaceful village of Oldtown, was one of the chief villages of the Shawnee Indians.

This town, bofer the entrance of the paleface in to the country which later became Greene County was one of the largest "cities" in the Ohio country, numbering about 1,100. Beautifully situated in the broad valley of the Little Miami River, it occupied a place of rare beauty. A lovely prairie stretched away to the west, bounded by a range of wooded hills. On the north meandered the Little Miami.

Old Chillicothe was one of the terminal points of the many Indian "thoroughfares" which penetrated the forest fastnesses of the land north of the Ohio. Here at the council house, which occupied the site of the present school house of Oldtown, Black Fish, Tecumseh and the hated renegades, Simon Girty, McKee and the Scotchman, Dixon, met in council with the warriors of the Shawnees nation and planned marauding expeditions against the white settlements of Kentucky.

To this historic old place the grand old pioneers, Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone, and many other less famous backwoodsmen were brought as captives.

MIRTH AND CARE

Let laughter ring and let the mirth go on,
Be wise today, catch beauty when you can.
The clouds roll up and soon the sun is gone,
Tomorrow care shall bid you play the man.

Be not deceived by mirth and sunny skies,
Think not that with you always they will stay.
Be warned by life that pleasure quickly flies,
Somewhere the tasks are waiting down the way.

Keep well in mind the care which must befall,
Have courage ready ever for the test.
Stand up to life, prepared to face it all,
'Tis not by mirth but duty man is blest.

The flowers of pleasure hurry up to reap,
But brave the cares of life with equal grace.
Today you laugh; tomorrow you may weep
So runs the world in which you hold a place.

Then let not pleasure tell you it is all,
All that life holds of value in its span.
There is a joy, when darkening shadows fall
In having stood to care and played the man.

East Side - West Side

—OF—

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

New Yorkers have a quick, direct way of solving problems—even such national problems as what to do when you happen to sit next to some one who reads movie titles aloud. These loud-speakers are occasionally found even at the big movie shows, where the price of a movie seat is $2.00 plus war tax.

A friend and I shelled out for "The Big Parade" the other night, and right behind us was a woman who spelled out every word of every caption. She had a beautiful voice—like a ferry horn. She even threw in some highlights in the way of comment on the acting.

I was looking around for the nearest exit when my friend grasped my arm. I turned to find him stuffing something in his ears.

"Here," he said, handing me a roll of absorbent cotton. "I always carry it."

New York is the city that never sleeps.

The other morning I fully expected to catch the metropolis dozing, when I stepped out on Fourteenth Street for a snack of coffee at 4:15. This is what I found on a single block:

Nine taxis, rippling along—three cruising, six with fares. One thundering street car, clanging away, full of people going somewhere. Two cops in a flivver. Three or four laborers, swinging along to work. Two charwomen, going home to bed or to get breakfast for their babies. One young man carrying an armful of books. One young woman, gazing into a clothing store window. A boy trundling something in a little wagon, covered with burlap. Two cats, doing the round of trash barrels. A floater, heading for the subway to get warm. A man who might have been anything from a bill collector to an insurance salesman. A fruit peddler. A party of girls and men in evening dress, entering Childs for a late supper.

This at 4:15 a. m.! Try to catch New York napping some night—and you'll find that from the Bowery to Spuyten Duyvil she's gone one eye open.

The stomachs of New Yorkers will soon be the most muscular in the world, from bumping against the subway turnstiles. Even the roaring old Elevated Lines have these abdomen obstacles now, and folks who travel every day on the underground or the overhead are outgrowing their first torsal tenderness.

I saw a great comedy act the other day in the Fourteenth Street station of the East Side subway. One of the gates had jammed and was as solid as the wall of China. One after another, the unsuspecting passengers walked into it and received a knock-out blow in the solar plexus. I may as well admit I took one myself before I got wise.

Nothing but Dempsey's glove has the wallop of a dead turnstile. Ooof.

MITZI GETS SOME FACTS NOT GEOGRAPHICAL

Jay V. Jay

"Well, Mitzi, we are nearing Omaha," says Dad to his daughter hoping to feed her some geographical facts about the country they are touring. So far he hasn't been very successful. He notices however, that Mitzi is wearing a new felt hat rimmed with grosgrain ribbon. A new hat for very city and they have visited about ten already.

"At Omaha a great deal of grain is shipped," Dad reads on to heedless ears. The lady coming up the aisle is wearing a printed silk dress with a jabot side to it. It extends from the neck across the blouse to the opposite side of the waist. "A very clever way to break the straight line of a dress," Mitzi remarks.

"Omaha," continues Dad, "is known for its stockyards"—reading from the circular. He does not notice that Mitzi is more attentive to passing styles than she is to statistics. "The jabot front of this dress that is passing is interesting for it falls in surplus fashion. That hunch Mitzi had about the popularity of jabot styles is right."

Mitzi has such confidence in their smartness that she wears one herself. It's a moire silk with embroidered jabot with a narrow collar. Notice the sleeves, please, long, narrow cuffs and a puff above them. "What city is this?" questions Mitzi. "Omaha," reiterates Dad sort of hopelessly. "I've been reading to you about it for the last half hour."

Today's Talk

WHAT MAKES A FRIEND?

There is one thing certain—we could not live long in this world without a friend.

"Friendless and alone," the saddest couplet in the English language, I believe that is quite true.

It is very important, then, to learn at least a few things that make a friend. In the first place, money doesn't. More friends have been lost through money than through any other means. That is, money alone.

Adversity may come and all that you have in material wealth may be wiped away, but so long as that loyalty and beauty of character which have made so many men and women great—remain, its like the bank that has a nervous "run" upon its deposits, but which has ample reserves in its vaults.

The greatest thing that makes a friend is trust. An innate belief in that something of the soul of a person which cannot be defined in words, but which must be felt and understood.

He who believes in his friend will defend that friend against all assaults.

And a genuine friend is so rare that he deserves defense at all times.

No one is either a failure or an unimportant human being so long as he can boast of at least one friend.

Another thing that makes a friend is patience. Patience that is proof against all irritations or defects of habit or character which the friend may show. Just bear in mind the human frailty of us all.

If you like to think of your friend when absent, or to encourage him in his work whenever you can, he surely has something that will return both appreciation and inspiration to you at times when you would like to have given back what he took.

Genuineness is the trade-mark of the true friend. And you don't have to explain that term.

Central High Football Activities Will Start Soon

CAPTAIN MARSHALL AND COACH KOLB TO LAUNCH PRACTICES

Thirteen Veterans To Form Nucleus Of 1922 Squad

Captain Max Marshall, right end in 1921 and with two years of experience behind him, will lead the Central High School football team through a difficult schedule this fall, seeking to return to Central the high honors that the teams of 1921 and 1922 achieved when the eleven played through the season without a defeat the first year and only one setback during the succeeding season.

Coach Vic Kolb and Captain Marshall will probably issue the first call for candidates for the 1922 eleven next week. It will be the former Ohio Wesleyan star's second year as Central's athletic director.

Next week is expected to inaugurate concerted action toward training. In addition to the expected freshman crop of candidates, Central this year will have thirteen veterans to draw from.

Besides Captain Marshall other letter men who will return include Butts, Higgins, Tull, Smith, Vance, Morton, Scott, Graham, Maddox, Clemens, Rakoff and Doak.

Central's big games this year will be against Withrow High, Cincinnati, Springfield and Wilmington. Withrow and Greenville are under two-year agreements. Four games have been scheduled for home and five away with the possibility of another home game may be added making ten in all.

Central will meet Withrow at Cincinnati October 29 in the feature number of the schedule. The Cincinnati school has won the football championship of Greater Cincinnati for a number of years straight and the "Tigers" are about the class of southern Ohio.

O. S. and S. O. Home opens the Central season September 24 at Cox Memorial Athletic Field and McLean High, of Greenfield, follows here October 1. Then Central comes face to face with a schedule that should keep any team busy.

On successive weeks Greenville and Washington C. H. are played away from home, October 8 and October 15. Then comes Troy, Withrow, Springfield, Urbana and Wilmington in the order named. All these teams have a reputation of being able to put fear into the heart of most any team and for their ability to put up a stiff fight in a strenuous game.

For the nucleus of his team Coach Kolb has the thirteen seasoned veterans out of an original squad last year of about twenty-five. Of these at least eight can be classified as regular members of the 1922 eleven. They are Smith, and Vance in the backfield; Morton, Marshall and Doak ends; Clemens, center; Rakoff, guard; and Graham, tackle.

Central's grid mentor will be forced to develop a quarterback due to the graduation of Bob Finley. Another half-back is also needed as well as a guard and tackle. For the rest, the remaining positions are well taken care of.

Central's complete 1922 schedule follows:

Sept. 24—O. S. and S. O. Home here.

Oct. 1—Greenfield here.

Oct. 8—Greenville away.

Oct. 15—Washington C. H. away.

Oct. 22—Troy here.

Oct. 29—Withrow (Cincinnati) away.

Nov. 4—Springfield away.

Nov. 12—Urbana here.

Nov. 19—Wilmington away.

Nov. 26—Wilmington away.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS SEPTEMBER 7

Schedule for September 8 will bring together the Artesians and Greene County Lumber Co., McCarran Bros., and Critteron will meet September 9 and Graham Paints and Candy Kits September 10.

Games will be played on every night of the week thereafter except on Saturday nights. All matches start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

FOR A LIGHT LUNCH WHERE THE FELLOWS MEET

NATIONAL LEAGUE ENTERS HOME STRETCH WITH THREE WESTERN CLUBS FIGHTING FOR TOP POST

Cardinals' sensational double victory over Pittsburgh in the Tuesday twin bill and the stinging defeat of the Reds by Chicago complicated the National League flag race as it has never been complicated before.

With three clubs virtually tied for first place, the Cubs not far in the rear and the teams entering the home stretch, one of the snappiest finishes of history is in prospect.

The pennant race is entirely a Western club affair this year, when the smoke of Tuesday's bitter battles had cleared away, the Cardinals were found to have gained two full games on the Pirates, moving into top position with a three-point advantage over Cincinnati.

Although Chicago again took Cincinnati's scalp, the Reds retained second place by the scant margin of one point over the Pirates. Nor is Chicago to be discounted as a pennant contender. Only four games behind Pittsburgh, the Cubs have a record of nine victories in their last ten games and are rapidly forging to the front.

There is a possibility that the Reds may benefit Wednesday for the team has an off day in its schedule. Pirates and Cardinals meet again while Manager Hendrick's lads are resting up for the crucial three-game series with the Cardinals at Cincinnati Friday. Thursday the Reds play Pittsburgh one game. These four games may be a turning point in the race.

The Reds met their jinx again Tuesday—the Chicago Cubs, and lost 1 to 0 in the most magnificent pitching duel of the season between Percy Jones and Jackie May.

Jakie, hurled great ball for eight rounds but slipped up in the ninth and permitted one run, the only score of the game. Jimmy Cooney and Mike Gonzales brought about the defeat, the former hitting a double and the Cub catcher scoring him with a single.

It was a bitter pill to swallow at this stage of the flag fight but the Cub victory was well deserved inasmuch as Jones yielded but a scant two hits, Percy, like Charley Root, the Middletown product, has been the Nemesis of the Reds this year. In his last workout against the Hendricks brigade, Jones pitched his team to a 3 to 0 shutout victory so in the past eighteen innings the Reds scoring efforts have been null and void.

It is just a matter of guess work which of the Western clubs will be sitting on top of the baseball world when the finish is at hand. Which team will show best under the trying conditions to come this month? Will it be the Reds, the world champion Pirates or Hornsby's St. Louis Cardinals, the former league door-mat which has not won a pennant for thirty-eight years? Pitching will be the factor in determining which team will not crack under the strain.

GENE TUNNEY READS PHILOSOPHY AT CAMP

SPECULATOR, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Now that Gene Tunney has gone, it can be told.

The challenger, who had sneaked off to a lonely road on the shore of Lake Pleasant for stolen minutes to read, chattered and thick books on philosophy for part of his reading. The classics also entered him.

But Tunney admitted before he left for Stroudsburg yesterday that he does like Jeffery Farnol's novels and occasionally babbles within the covers of modern novels such as "Glitter," by Katherine Brush.

The heavyweight from Green-wich village it was revealed learned not only to fight there but a few of the artistic traits of his inhabitants. If he had complete say as to how he would spend all of his spare time, he would say, "reading."

IOWA FACES STIFF PROGRAM BECAUSE BACKFIELD LOST

By IRWIN L. FEMRITE (United Press Staff Correspondent) IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Shattered by the loss of the backfield quartet of Don Graham, Wesley Fry, Schirmer and Dauber, and the line glimmers—Krasuski, tackle and Griffin, center, and with the star Dick Romey now on the list of Alumni, Iowa's football team, under the directing eye of Coach Burr Ingerson, faces a stiff program of reconstruction.

With Cowboy Nick Kutsch suspended, and attempting to regain admission to the university through work at summer school, the future of the squad largely resembles a huge question mark. If announcement is made at the opening of the season that Kutsch is eligible, a sigh of relief may be heard about the world to issue from the corn belt.

Bab Kuhel, known principally in his college days as a hurdler, but back in the old high school days at Cedar Rapids an all-scholastic backfield man, may take up the burden of the attack if Kutsch is not allowed to carry the ball. Both lads are fair punters, but the loss will be felt especially in the booting department.

Skeely, freshman captain in 1924, who left school, will be back for the season; so will Don Smith, a reserve last year. Others who will work out for regular backfield posts are Byers, Phillips, Flake and Arml, of last year's freshman squad.

Capt. Smith will play at end, his old position. Brown will probably be used to plug the hole left by Griffin, and Chatterton will attempt to fill Krasuski's gap. Both these lads juggle the scale at more than 200. Keel, in spring practice looked as though he had reserved a regular guard's job for himself. Rice, irregular regular last season, should occupy Romey's end job.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has intimated very strongly that he is going to build over his club. He wants a very outfielder to succeed Irish Meusel and a young catcher. He could also use some pitchers.

The Cincinnati Reds, failing this year because of infield weakness, will try to find a new shortstop and another third baseman. The team has plenty of good pitting but Jack Hendricks blamed the collapse of the team on a shortstop weakness, figuring that it cost the team at least nine games.

The Washington Senators will have to rebuild at several positions and Bucky Harris may decide to trade a couple of players who haven't been getting along

INFORMATION SENT TO SCHOOL PUPILS

Letters are being mailed out to Senior High School students and cards to Junior High pupils at the Central Building explaining certain facts and giving information pertaining to the opening of the fall school term, according to Principal Spencer Shank.

These letters contain home room assignments, various home room teachers, and a book list of the names and prices of the standard text books to be used in school during the coming year.

ACCUSED MAN TAKES BANKRUPTCY LAW

STEBURVILLE, O., Sept. 1.—John G. Belknap, who has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in federal court at Columbus, is one of five that were indicted for discrepancies said to have caused the Yorkville bank crash on May 15.

The petition, one of the largest ever filed in Columbus, lists liabilities of $116,605 and assets of $119,060. Of the claims listed $219,000 is secured.

Belknap, together with former Congressman W. B. Francis, W. E. Jones, and Thomas A. Jones will go on trial in common pleas court here late this month. The men are charged with issuing a fraudulent certificate of deposit to the Guaranty Trust Company at Columbus which resulted in the subsequent closing of the Union Savings bank at Yorkville by the state banking department. More than half a million dollars were lost by 3,000 depositors.

Brindley Jones, assistant cashier has also been indicted for false entries in connection with loans made from the bank.

Briand wrote in response to a query regarding his attitude toward the reports of various efforts to sabotage the league. PARIS, Sept. 1.—The League of Nations constitutes at the present moment the surest guarantee of peace in the world. It has already demonstrated its value as an instrument of peace in Europe. It is sufficient to recall the efficacy of its intervention in one of the gravest cases when it brought about the peaceful settlement of a conflict between nations which might have caused a rupture of the European equilibrium.

Everybody sincerely attached to the work for peace and convinced of the necessity of a common effort for the safeguard of an identical civilization and an identical ideal of humanity owe it to themselves to demonstrate very clearly their solidarity and service to this task by defending at any cost the future of the league and by sacrificing to it, if need be, their momentary pre-occupations of self-esteem and self interest. Defense of the league is defense of peace itself. I have firmly decided to place at its service the best of my intelligence and of my strength. I look on the road we have travelled and find in the results acquired reasons for confidence and faith. I am leaving Paris more than ever filled with the sentiments which always have guided me on the way to Geneva.

I do not hide from myself the difficulties of the obstacles which remain to be surmounted in order to complete and vivify the work begun at Locarno. I know that certain criticism will not be lacking. I am well aware that peace cannot be made a reality without unpleasant experiences. But the object to be obtained is well worth the trouble. And I see that a great majority of the peoples of the world look with sympathy toward the league.

I know now how far I can count on the aid of the most tried and true members of the league. Their loyalty and their courage are the best guarantee of victory at a time when for the defense of an identical cause, all must show sincerity, good will and disinterest.

New Method Eradicates Wrinkles Like Magic

It has been found that a simple tartronic mixture, spread over the entire face, acts almost magically upon even the deepest wrinkles and crowfeet. It produces the natural rejuvenating effect of massage, only to a more marked degree. The danger of loosening the skin or muscles, as in scientific or too frequent massage, is eliminated, no rubbing being necessary. On the other hand, the skin and underlying tissues are so invigorated they become much firmer, and the skin's texture is so changed it again assumes its original clear, smooth, velvety appearance.

If you will procure a package of powdered tartronic from your druggist, mix a spoonful with a spoonful of lemon juice, apply with the fingers, and sit down before your mirror, you will see the wrinkles and lines disappear, in less than fifteen minutes! You will be amazed to say the least. Tartronic of course is perfectly harmless. And certainly it is inexpensive; a treatment costs less than three cents.

"Messiah" Begins "Salvation" of Modern, Materialistic America

Diffident, quiet and shy but with a seemingly ample fund of self-confidence, Jiddu Krishnamurti, the 30 year old Hindu whom many theosophists hail as the incarnation of the godhead, begins his tour of America, the aim of which is said to be "to save America from materialism." He is seen here with his first disciple and discoverer, Mrs. Annie Besant.

Who will be the next film celebrity to answer the Great Director's order, "cut!" Hollywood, during these days while the shock of Valentino's death is still fresh, feels the question is one that comes close to every studio. Within the past few years death has exacted a heavy toll from the films. Among those who were stricken down at the peak of their careers were Barbara La Marr, as the result of a breakdown, Lucille Rickson, who died at 17, Martha Mansfield, burned to death while on location, Wallace Reid, who died making a brave fight against the power of drugs, Marguerite Marsh, a pneumonia victim and Olive Thomas at 22, killed by poisoning in Paris.

Fingerprint Tightens Net on Stevens

The fingerprints above—the one on the left from police records and the one on the right from a card found propped against the body of Rev. Hall's widow, and Henry de la Carpenter, accused with him of the murder.

The Gilded Rose

By May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother. Rosilyn, loving her husband, knows he is still in love with LYDIA HARBROOK, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway.

RUPERT BRISCOE, a dissipated man of the world, has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and she and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby Rosilyn and Briscoe will see a great deal of each other, and Lydia will have a chance to exert her wiles upon Landis. The plan works, and Landis, finding himself often alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more.

Van Vorst, however, hungering for her love, decides to use MARIETTA FERNANDEZ, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a scheme. These two come to New York where Marietta begins to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosilyn, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. After an exciting adventure she is rescued by Briscoe who tells a "fishy" story to account for his proximity to the scene. Soon after Landis effects a reconciliation with Rosilyn and becomes his old lovable self. The latter discovers damning evidence against Lydia and exerts her power to secure the upper hand—in the city meanwhile Marietta feels her power over Briscoe declining.

CHAPTER 61

A QUEER CONVERSATION

The following day, Marietta sent word to the theatre that she was indisposed, and shadowed Rupert Briscoe.

Half demented with pain and jealousy, the foreign girl had resolved to discover the name and nature of her rival.

By judicious tipping at his fashionable bachelor quarters she discovered from a porter that Mr. Briscoe had gone down to the country by private car.

"I heard him give the address to his chauffeur," the tipped one volunteered, obliging the Spanish beauty.

And he named the depot nearest to Royal Cliff.

Marietta, using a public call-office, telephoned the different New York termini until she learned what railroad station was her starting point.

She got her train, and two and a half hours later was on her way by taxi-cab to Royal Cliff.

Dismissing the auto a few hundred yards from the entrance gates, she warily went in by the back entrance, skirting the kitchen quarters, and coming out unexpectedly in an old herbar garden.

A girl in a quaint frock was in that garden, stooping over a bed of lavender.

She was a sweet-faced girl, with kind and really lovely eyes, thought distraught Marietta, when young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway raised her head.

"Did you want to see anyone?" The girl's tones were low and sweet. "Have you lost your way?"

"D'you mind me being here? Am I intruding?"

The other smiled.

"No, indeed. I suppose you've come to see one of my guests. I've so many in the house coming and going—that it's difficult to recognize and remember everybody."

"Is he here, then?" Marietta's burning eyes were on young Mrs. Ridgeway's face.

"He? Who?" Bewilderment came there.

Marietta answered dully, doggedly:

"The only man I ever loved."

The other girl seemed startled. Then she said, quietly and soothingly:

"Won't you come into the house and rest awhile? Won't you let me try to help you?"

Marietta drew back.

"He would be furious with me. I couldn't."

Rosilyn wondered:

"Who is the mysterious 'he' who has so upset this girl? Can it possibly be that she is a friend of Landis?"

Around she said, gently and sympathetically:

"It hurts me to see anyone in trouble, and be able to do nothing. Confidence often brings relief, and if you would confide in me, maybe between us we could do something."

Marietta gave the speaker an odd look. Her mood changed again and she answered, brusquely:

"You're the last person in the world I could confide in. Well I'll be going," went on Marietta dully, hunching her slender shoulders in foreign shrug. "I'd no right to come here. I hated you before I came. I was jealous of you. I—I wished you ill. But now that I've seen you, all that has died. I wish—" she hesitated and then held out her hand. "I wish you'd say there is no ill-feeling and wish me luck."

Rosilyn Ridgeway looked searchingly at the dancing girl. How Landis must have hurt her! What desperate thoughts, what torn emotions, lay behind the brusque manners of this foreign creature?

"Wish me luck?" reiterated Marietta, her great, tragic eyes on the bride's face. "It isn't selfish of me to ask it, because there's so much happiness in your own life that you wouldn't miss one slice of it!"

"I wonder...." Rosilyn was almost unconscious that she spoke aloud. "Is anybody on this earth really happy?" Then suddenly feeling an unaccountable confidence in her listener, she went on—

"One is lucky if one has 'moments,' don't you think? They're like a dream, they pass so quickly. And the reality afterwards can be so very painful. But the big 'moments' make the rest of life worth while."

"I have had my 'moments,'" said Marietta with a queer intensity. "They are the only things that count. Without them I would kill myself. Because life would be meaningless. You understand?"

Rosilyn bowed her head.

"I do understand." And then she added, in a mood of recklessness engendered by a queer sympathy for this strange creature:

"If anyone I know has hurt you, please believe me that I'm sorry. Believe, too, that I know only too well the meaning of pain and loneliness."

Marietta gripped her hand.

"You're a good woman. The kind I might have been, maybe, if I'd ever had a square deal. I bear you no grudge."

Then, with a swift gracefulness that her years of dancing had given her, she was gone and Rosilyn alone, full of wonderment and vague surmise.

That it was Landis, her own husband, who was the 'raison d'être' of the foreign girl's unhappiness, young Mrs. Ridgeway did not for a moment doubt.

She had heard the rumors. She had listened very recently to Lydia Harbrook's story. Sorry for Marietta—and for giving—she was sick at heart. Were there no limits to the humiliation that a man could heap upon her?

And, after all, she was his wife. Tomorrow—Another Mystery

Wonder How King Canute Would Act Today?

KING CANUTE, so history tells us, once sat by the sea and, in fierce tones, called upon the tide to stop.

In a very few moments the tide showed it's obedience by wetting the Royal train. The moral of this little story is: "You can't resist the irresistible."

THE merchant who fails to advertise, in these days of hard and strenuous competition, is attempting to resist the irresistible. If he isn't careful he's going to be "all wet."

The tide of business follows the line of least resistance and GOES WHERE IT IS INVITED. It will flow past your place of business toward the advertiser and your commands to stop it will be as futile as those of ancient King Canute.

IF YOUR COMPETITOR ADVERTISES, CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO?

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieut. Cyrus Bettis, injured in an airplane crash near Bellefonte, Pa., August 23, died this morning at 9:05 from meningitis induced by his injuries.

Bettis, who was brought here from Bellefonte by army ambulance last week, to receive treatment at Walter Reed Hospital, suffered a relapse yesterday afternoon and lapsed into unconsciousness from which he did not recover.

Lieut. Bettis, flying with two companions over Pennsylvania a week ago Monday, became lost in a fog and his plane struck Jack's Mountain near Bellefonte. Despite a fractured leg, a double fracture of the jaw and other injuries, Bettis crawled from the wreckage and made his way several miles from the scene of the crash. He was found by two boys and taken to a hospital at Bellefonte.

After he was brought to Washington he was believed to be recovering rapidly, despite the seriousness of his injuries. Yesterday, however, inflammation of the nerve sheaths set in and Bettis, his strength exhausted by his harrowing experiences, was unable to combat the new complications.

Mrs. John Bettis, mother of the aviator, is due to reach Washington today from Fort Huron, Mich. She left her home there yesterday.

Lieut. Bettis was born Jan. 2, 1893. He entered the aviation service as a private Jan. 23, 1918 and was commissioned as a second lieutenant July 1, 1920.

Lieut. Bettis won the Pulitzer air speed trophy in October 1925 setting new world's speed records for 100 and 200 kilometer distances.

"It seems the affection she has been appraising in newspapers is worth at least $100,000," Wright said in speaking of his wife's suit before he left Tallahassee. "It is humiliating not to see the affection valued at a million but I am damaged goods."

SIXTEEN WOUNDED WHEN RIOTERS RESIST POLICE

State Troopers Fire at Crowd Wounding Five When Tear Bombs Fail—Police Hurt By Flying Stones

MANVILLE, R. I., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Thirty-five members of the 103rd Field Artillery, National Guard, arrived by motor truck from Providence early today to reinforce eleven state police who last night battled with 500 strikers of the Manville-Jencks Cotton Mill.

All of the eleven troopers were cut by stones hurled by the strikers, and five of the strikers, according to police, were wounded when the troopers returned fire which they said came from the crowd.

After the rioting of the evening, order was restored and quiet prevailed up to dawn today. The reinforcements from Providence, under side arms and in command of Major Rollins, arrived at 1:30 a. m. and moved into the mill which they will patrol.

Their orders were to protect property at the plant and it was understood that they will not carry out any patrolling in the town itself.

State police said shot guns were fired by the strikers as they advanced to storm a bridge leading to the mill, held by police.

Volleys fired into the air, as well as the use of tear bombs, failed to halt the advance and the police finally fired directly at the crowd.

For an hour and a half the strikers battled with the troopers, who were sent here after milder outbreaks Monday.

The battle began when Marguerite Leola, a striker, started to cross the police dead line on a bridge leading to the mill. He was stopped by troops. An argument ensued in which strikers claim Leola was struck on the head and knocked unconscious.

Then the crowd stormed the bridge, compelling the small band of troopers to retreat. Firing broke out. A striker named Ragola was shot in the shoulder and the crowd again charged.

The troopers fired two volleys into the air but it proved ineffective. Tear bombs did not stop the advance. The troops according to strikers then fired directly into the crowd, wounding two persons.

One of the wounded, Aram Anouli, is a nephew of Mayor Soule of Woonsocket. He was taken to a hospital with a bullet in his jaw. The other wounded striker had the tip of one of his fingers off.

Judging of perchons, short-horns and guernseys, yorkshires, and merinos; class B doretts and south downs sheep was a special attraction for the farmers.

The attendance today was expected to reach 70,000. Last year's turnout on Wednesday was 66,917.

YOUNG LEADS RACE FOR GOVERNOR OVER FRIEND RICHARDSON

Shortridge Leading Senator Fight Over
Clarke

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieut. Governor C. C. Young had a lead of 11,063 votes over Gov. Friend Richardson early today in the primary race for the Republican nomination for governor.

Returns from 302 precincts in the state gave Young 92,164 votes, Richardson 81,101 and Rex B. Goodsell 35,500.

In the primaries for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator, Samuel M. Shortridge, incumbent, was leading the field. He had 69,690 votes, while Robert M. Clarke, whom Senator Hiram Johnson has championed, had 57,356.

Walter Lineberg was a poor third and presumably out of the race with 20,205.

Shortridge's apparent victory indicated that the Coolidge administration policies had received the support of the party in California, his backers said. Shortridge is a champion of the world court, while Clarke was an avowed opponent of American entrance.

The Democratic primaries had few contests.

DEPUTY TO SERVE

SOLD LIQUOR AT COUNTRY DANCE; TO EAT BREAD AND WATER IN JAIL

TEKEMAP, Neb., Sept. 1.—Today is a feast day at the homes of Ray Carson and Thomas Nelson, young farmers who must serve a jail sentence on a bread and water diet for selling liquor at a country dance.

Ham and eggs was the breakfast menu for both homes. There was a breakfast food and plenty of coffee. The bread was buttered.

Carson at noon will have chicken, corn on the cob and dessert. Nelson will have a large and thick steak and the usual vegetables which go to make up a meal. Pies feature the menu at Nelson's home. This may be the last time in twenty days that the couple will have a chance to have any thing more than unbuttered bread and water.

"We're going to fill up today," Nelson said. "The farmer doesn't build up much of a waist line and we'll probably need a reserve when we get to munching nothing but bread."

"They won't starve in jail," Sheriff W. D. Smith said today. "I will see that there is a plentiful supply of bread on hand at all times and they can have all the water they want."

"Then when the first twenty days are over they will go on regular prison fare which Mrs. Smith prepares. They will get plenty of food during that period."

The sentence provides the two will serve twenty days on the bread and water diet, twenty days on regular prison fare, then the remaining twenty days on bread and water diet again.

WARSHIPS AND MARINES SAFEGUARD AMERICAN LIVES AND PROPERTY IN NICARAGUAN REVOLT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—With three U. S. warships and a landing party of marines guarding American lives and property endangered by the Nicaraguan revolution the state department today awaited reports on the impending battle in El bluff.

The U. S. S. Galveston is in Bluefields harbor in the shadow of Elbluff where the conflicting native forces are expected to decide control of the gulf coast.

Both the Galveston and marines occupying Bluefields have been ordered to maintain strict neutrality, confining their activities to protection of American interests. To avoid direct conflict between American and Nicaraguan forces the American commander has declared Bluefields city a neutral zone.

The U. S. S. Rochester, flagship of the special service squadron has notified the state department of its arrival at Brangman's bluff, 120 miles north of Elbluff but failed to confirm reports of Americans killed there.

According to diplomatic sources the state department is using informal good offices to induce General Chamorro to retire in favor of a constitutional government. Chamorro who seized the power by a military coup last November is not recognized by the United States.

KNIGHT FIRES FIR ST ROUND IN BATTLE TO DEFEAT PRIMARY LAW

Brief Filed With Secretary Of State Declares System
Makes It Impossible For Poor Man To Seek Office

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 1.—The first round in the fight to knock out the direct primary system in Ohio began today when a brief branding the primary system as "highly dangerous to public interest" and certain to result in "corruption" was filed with the secretary of state.

The argument was filed by Charles L. Knight, Akron publisher in support of the proposed amendment to the constitution repealing the primary law.

Defenders of the primary today, meanwhile, were preparing an argument against the repeal amendment. It must be filed by tomorrow.

Under the present primary system it is impossible for a poor man to be a candidate for state office, Knight asserted in the brief.

"The primary is highly dangerous to public interest and must result eventually in corruption," he charged. "It is not the rule of the people."

STUDENTS MAKE UP
BACK WORK AT O. S. U.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Most of Ohio State university's football candidates who were making up backwork in summer school were successful, it was learned today.

Those who are known to have passed include: Tackle Lackens and Guards Pess, Meyers and Young of last year's varsity.

Bucks Eby, Kruskamp and Oshner, End Alber and Tackles Nesser and Cox of last year's freshman team also kicked the scholarship goal.

There is some doubt regarding the status of "Buster" McMillan, star frosh back and Herb Slough, substitute center.

Tom Albanez, fast freshman quarter, definitely is ineligible.

American Community
Safe—Quake Leaves
Ruins In Wake

HORTA, Azores Islands, Sept. 1.—Twelve persons were killed, approximately 100 were injured and hundreds are homeless after an earthquake which spread ruin here.

Order has been restored and by yesterday evening a temporary lighting service was started to provide light for the two small parks where large numbers were gathered.

Beyond the parks Horta appeared to be a city of dead, with troops and firemen patrolling the streets between the ruined houses.

The earth shock came at 9 a. m. yesterday.

Earthquakes have been experienced on the island since time immemorial, although they have seemed to increase in frequency during the past four years. The last one felt was April 5. But never in the memory of any living person here has there been such a catastrophe as the present one.

Confusion swept the city. Thousands ran aimlessly through the streets. Automobiles dashed at a furious pace. Clouds of dust rose from the fallen houses, obscuring the scene.

When the dust subsided an appalling picture presented itself. Instead of the quiet little town with its white-washed houses against the hills—in reality extinct volcanoes—all were in ruin.

The injured persons were taken to hospitals. One man had just left his home to go to work at the custom house when the shock came. He ran back to find his home demolished and his wife and child dead in the debris. Had the shock come during the night the death toll would have been much greater.

The authorities, aided by troops and firemen at once took command of the situation commandeering automobiles to transport the injured and working all the day and into the night to restore order.

The island of Fayal, with its town of Horta, capital of one of the Azorean districts is about thirty miles in circumference. In addition to the town there are several outlying villages, the total population of the island being about 30,000. It is situated in a seismic zone, as are the other islands of the group with the exception of Flores and Corvo. At one time the volcanoes were active and much damage was done by outbursts.

It seemed that a seismic wave coming from the southwest yesterday struck the island on its eastern side and ran along in a northerly direction through the channel which separates Fayal from the island of Pico. Taking the neighborhood of Petreia as a starting point, the wave left a trail of demolished houses and cracked roads at it made its way along the east coast toward Lombardo Pinar.

The port was not affected, shipping firms carrying on business as usual.

LISBON, Sept. 1.—Thus far ten persons were known to have been killed and about 250 severely injured and others slightly injured in an earthquake which rocked Horta in the Azores group yesterday.

The population still was panic stricken and feared a repetition of the quake, according to a dispatch from Horta. Some families were without food and many had no shelter.

Horta is the capital of the island of Fayal in the Azores group. In 1900, the latest figures available, the population of the town was about 7,000. The population of Fayal was about 25,000. Opposite Horta is the best anchorage and harbor in the Azores group. The area of Fayal is about sixty-five miles. The Azores are Portuguese and about 800 miles west of Portugal.

State commission announces that an interesting bulletin, which gives complete data regarding the examination, has been issued by the body, and will be mailed free to all interested, or a copy can be obtained at the office of the County Auditor.

A. E. Kildow has been serving as acting superintendent at the infirmary since April 1, 1926 under a provisional appointment of County Commissioners. His wife has served as matron.

Year's Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

MRS. ED. DAUGHERTY
1306 ORCHARD AVENUE, MUSCATINE, IOWA

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a recent letter, Mrs. Daugherty says, "I was ill for four months before I took your medicine. I found one of your books at my front door and read it. It seemed to fit my case, so I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after I took the third bottle, I found relief. I am on my eleventh bottle and I don't have that trouble any more, and feel like a different woman. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every one I see who has trouble like mine. I am willing to answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. Daugherty, 1306 Orchard Avenue, Muscatine, Iowa.

Mrs. Carr Also Helped

Muncie, Indiana—"I could not get around to do my work. I took treatments and they did me no good. I had always heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine and I thought it would be like all the others, but I found out after I took half a bottle, as I have proved it wonderful. I am taking it yet and I can do all my work. I am feeling fine now, and it is your good medicines that have done it. I tell every woman of the good I get from taking the Vegetable Compound and from using the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. P. W. Carr, 721 West Powers St., Muncie, Indiana.

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is the highest building in the United States.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building with enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

In many little villages as in many thriving cities along the route, you are glad to tell others about Lydia

LACKEY-STEPHENS WEDDING CEREMONY

Miss Leota Stephens became the bride of Mr. A. Clark Lackey, Mount Airy, N. C., son of Dr. and Mrs. B. L. Lackey, Home Ave., this city, with a pretty ceremony performed at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Stephens, near Wilmington, Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock.

The vows were taken in the presence of fifty relatives and friends of the couple. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Lorena Stephens, sister of the bride, gave two vocal numbers, "O Promise Me," and "All For You." Mrs. Henry Spear played the accompaniment and the wedding march. The bride and groom came down the staircase, led by little Miss Mary Esther Lackey, sister of the bridegroom, who wore green.

Miss Thelma Stephens, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, walked next. She wore a charming creation of rose taffeta. She walked with Mr. Herman Wendlandt, Duluth, Minn., fraternity brother of Mr. Lackey, at Carnegie School of Technology, who was best man.

The bride and bridegroom came last. Miss Stephens was gown in white taffeta, fashioned in a bouffant style, with tulle veil. She carried a large bouquet of bride's roses and lilies. The procession was met at the improvised altar, in the bow window of the living room, by President Edwin Jay, of Wilmington College, the bride's alma mater, who performed the ceremony. The single ring ceremony was used.

After the felicitations of the guests, refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Lackey left Tuesday evening by auto for Mount Airy, where they will reside. They will make the trip leisurely, and the journey will form their honeymoon trip. Mrs. Lackey's traveling costume consisted of a frock of Copenhagen blue, with blue coat, trimmed in mole, with black velvet hat and matching accessories.

Mr. Lackey is employed as draughtsman for the Mount Airy Granite Corporation. Both he and his bride are well known in this city, where their marriage is of interest. Mr. Lackey is a member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity and Mrs. Lackey is affiliated with Phi Kappa Sorority, Wilmington College.

FIRE PROTECTION HERE IS FAIR OHIO INSPECTION BUREAU SAYS

Xenia's fire protection as a whole grades "fair" for a city of this size according to a summary of a report of an inspection of the city's fire-fighting facilities, covering the city water supply and fire department, made by R. B. Criswell, engineer of the Ohio Inspection Bureau, Columbus.

This organization is maintained by the various insurance companies of three states and inspections of all cities are made annually. Besides summarizing the equipment of the fire department and city waterworks, twelve minor recommendations were made, one of major importance. No criticisms were made.

Regular inspection of buildings in the mercantile and manufacturing districts of the city was urged upon members of the fire department, in the report.

The new fire chief has not yet completed his plans for building inspections. In the past these inspections were made about twice a year.

According to the report on the water supply, the only improvement now contemplated for the waterworks plant is the possible drilling of two additional wells at the main pumping station. This improvement, it was recommended, should be made in the near future.

Improvement of the eight and one-half mile strip of the pipe from the Greene County to Warren County line is virtually finished. Only work remaining to be done is the repairing of several bridges and spreading the entire road with a coating of tar.

The road is passable from Springfield Valley on but detours are still necessary from Xenia to Springfield Valley, County Commissioners say.

Road is expected to be opened to traffic within the next thirty days.

MODERN WOMAN KNOWS LITTLE ABOUT NEEDLE EXCEPT FOR SEWING BUTTONS

When Xenia women decide they need a new dress, do they think of purchasing material and spending hours making the dress? Answer—they do not. That is, at least, the majority doesn't.

The "ready-made" movement in women's clothes has progressed so far that a home-made garment is now almost a curiosity. The modern Xenia wife is more apt to mash her toes in a mob at the bargain counter than she is to stick her finger with a needle while sewing at home.

Xenia girls and women confine their sewing ability to fancy work or in the furnishing of their home. The interesting art of sewing will always intrigue the feminine sex to a certain extent and they will satisfy its appeal to them in various ways.

Women's clothes today are as simple as they have been for many years, and it is perfectly possible for a woman to make her own if she cares to. It is just a question of whether or not it pays.

Americans are learning more and more to hire services done by the expert. Thus the modern housewife buys her bread from a baker, her clothes from stores, she sends her washing to the laundry, just as the modern man hires a plumber to fix the water pipes and a painter to paint the house, instead of doing it himself.

Word of the death Monday of Dr. Charles W. Drees, 75, retired Methodist Episcopal Church missionary and former Xenian, was contained in a brief dispatch from Buenos Aires, S. A., where he has resided a number of years.

Dr. Drees had given fifty years of uninterrupted service in the mission field while his widow, whom he married three years after his appointment as missionary, served forty-seven years. Dr. and Mrs. Drees were retired at their own request by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, two years ago.

Dr. Drees was born in Xenia, September 13, 1857, the son of Tobias and Maria Hynes Drees. Twenty years later he graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University, Boston University gave him the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1874 and Ohio Wesleyan gave him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1887. In April 1874, he went to Mexico and was assigned to missionary work in Pueblo where he built up a church and organized a boys' orphanage and theological school. Four years later Dr. William Butler retired and Dr. Drees was made superintendent of the Mexico Central District, with headquarters in Mexico City.

In 1887, at the request of Bishop Fowler, he was transferred to the superintendency of the South American mission with headquarters at Buenos Aires. In the early days that mission included eight republics, most of which are now organized as separate conferences.

In caring for this large field, it is estimated that Dr. Drees traveled more than half a million miles—crossing the Andes, a number of times and made several trips around Cape Horn.

From 1900 to 1904, Dr. Drees was superintendent of the Porto Rico Mission, and then for five years superintendent of Buenos Aires and superintendent of the Uruguay district. In 1919, at the request of the American Bible Society, he was released from mission service and spent four years in Spain assisting in the revision of the Spanish New Testament. In 1919 he founded the Spain Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

From 1919 until his retirement Dr. Drees was superintendent of Buenos Aires of the Eastern American Conference. Dr. and Mrs. Drees visited in Xenia a little more than a year ago.

Surviving are his widow, who is left in Buenos Aires with her sister, Miss Mary Combs. A brother of Dr. Drees, Frank Drees, Lansing, Mich., and a sister, Mrs. Jennie Alken, New York City, also survive. Miss Carrie Hynes, this city is a niece and Walter Jobe, Xenia is a grand-nephew, together with a number of other relatives here.

Funeral services and interment will be made in Buenos Aires.

GIRLS USE LEMON TO WHITEN SKIN

The only harmless way to bleach the skin white is to mix the juices of two lemons with three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug-gist will supply for a few cents. Shake well in a bottle, and you have a whole quarter-pint of the most wonderful skin whitener, softener and beautifier.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon bleach into the face, neck, arms and hands. It can not irritate. Famous stage beauties use it to bring that clear, youthful skin and rosy-white complexion; also a freckle, sunburn and tan bleach. You must mix this remarkable lotion yourself. It can not be brought ready to use because it acts best immediately after it is prepared.

"WEIRD RITES"

It has recently been reported that in the native quarters in Shanghai one thousand deaths have been occurring daily from cholera while just across the narrow streets which divide the native from the foreign residents of the same city there have been recorded only a total of two deaths during the whole period of the epidemic has been raging.

Further, we are informed the Chinese, in their desperation to check the ravages of the disease, are resorting to their ancient "weird rites" to end the awful dance of death.

Weird rites are romantic and interesting, but no sane person ever knew of them being effective against an epidemic of cholera, smallpox or any other disease. The Chinese are credited with having the oldest continuous government in the world, but they have been woefully lacking in scientific progress, especially in the line of healing.

If the Chinese could be induced to give up their impotent "weird rites" and adopt modern plumbing, and other modern sanitary devices calculated to prevent disease, it would be a great step forward.

PERISHABLE GOODS

All but an insignificant minority of the novelists of today, it is believed began their writing careers with the desire to achieve fame or to satisfy a creative urge as the main incentive. The making of money through the sale of their books was a secondary consideration, probably it was not until they had published one or two volumes that most of those who now depend upon their novels for a livelihood decided to make the writing of fiction their principal occupation.

Since fame, glory, and a place among the immortals of literature are the guerdons that have been most prominent in our novelists' minds, there is a good deal of irony in the statement made by Simon L. Nye, president of the American Booksellers' Association, at the annual convention of that organization in New York City that almost without exception a contemporary book of fiction, after having been published three months, is "practically dead, forgotten and awaiting removal to the bargain tables." Merit or lack of it has nothing to do with the phenomenon; admirable novels may last no longer than poor ones.

There is something pathetic in the idea of a writer putting the energy, the thought and feeling of a year or more into a work which, though excellent, should be so evanescent.

The situation directs attention to certain conditions of modern life which are not to our credit—the constant craving of the public for something new, even if the old is good and has not been utilized as it might be, and the tendency to follow a fad in an unreasoning way as a flock of sheep follow their leader.

Contemporary novels have become, from the bookseller's standpoint, perishable goods because the craze for novelty has advanced to the point where book buyers are not satisfied unless they can get fiction which is just off the press. Each wants to be able to talk about novels that are new and have not yet been discussed. Literature suffers grievously as a result.

HOME TOWN DEVELOPMENT

It used to be frequently said in smaller towns, that it is the business of a good citizen to mind his own business, keep out of debt and avoid breaking the laws. It was commonly thought that if he did that, it was about all that could be expected of him, and he was conforming to the ideals of good citizenship.

But a community's development cannot be promoted in these times on any such limited basis. The fact that so many small town people still have this spirit, and expect to get along without doing anything particular to boost community movements, is one of the principal reasons why some towns do not get ahead faster.

Some must take hold and carry on the work of churches and fraternal societies. Some of the men with a special head for business need to work in some organization for the commercial and other needed development of the community. Some need to work in clubs for educational purposes, and for more interesting social activities. There is something that each one should do and we must all take hold to do something in these public lines, if we expect that a town is going to keep up with the game.

People should not act as if they were making a great sacrifice if they devote a little of their time to such purposes. We should love our home city so much, we should be so ambitious to see it go ahead, we should be so conscious of the gains that people who have initiative or ability or industry, should be willing to give some time each week to helping forward such causes.

USEFUL SALAD DRESSINGS

The salad for a "company" dinner should not be particularly nourishing, as such a meal usually begins with a fruit cup or a thin soup (hot or jellied), which is followed by a meat and vegetable course (often with a fish course served as well as a meat course); then comes a decorative salad, piquant rather than filling—merely lettuce, romaine, endive or some other green served with a really "dressy" dressing like one of the following:

Thousand Island Dressing: One-half cup of oil, the juice of one-half lemon, juice of one-half orange, one-half cup of mayonnaise dressing, one teaspoon of grated onion, three teaspoons chopped parsley, one-fourth teaspoon each of mustard, salt and paprika, one teaspoon of Worcester Sauce, eight olives sliced and two hard-boiled eggs chopped. Mix dry ingredients, add them to the fruit juices, add other ingredients, put all together in a fruit jar, adjust cover with rubber ring (two may be needed), then shake well till the mixture is smooth. Set in the icebox to keep cold till time to serve. Another shaking may then be needed.

French Dressing with Variations: Two measures of oil to one of lemon juice or vinegar, is a good rule for a French dressing; add sugar (if liked), paprika, salt and dry mustard to suit individual preference. Peanuts, other chopped nuts, chopped olives or minced hard-boiled eggs, may all be added to French dressing to vary the flavor, as may also chopped onions, capers and minced green sweet peppers. Or you may vary it as follows:

Roquefort Cheese Dressing: Grate or crumble a two-inch cube of Roquefort cheese into one cupful of ordinary French dressing. East Indian Dressing: Add one-

The Theatre

The large motion picture houses of Broadway fast are approaching the legitimate theaters in the magnitude of their state presentations.

Many of them are now miniature musical productions, differentiated from the musical shows only in length. Symphony orchestras have long been a feature of the large houses. The first novelty effects on the stage consisted of playing multi-colored lights on special curtains, but soon individual performances were put on the stage between pictures.

The last year has seen the greatest development. Ballet masters, stage masters and chorus masters have been added to the house staffs, while equal attention has been devoted to the develop-

WHAT MAKES A FRIEND?

There is one thing certain—we could not live long in this world without a friend.

"Friendless and alone," the saddest couplet in the English language, I believe that is quite true. It is very important, then, to learn at least a few things that make a friend. In the first place, money doesn't. More friends have been lost through money than through any other means. That is, money alone.

Adversity may come and all that you have in material wealth may be wiped away, but so long as that loyalty and beauty of character which have made so many men and women great—remain, its like the bank that has a nervous "run" upon its deposits, but which has ample reserves in its vaults.

The greatest thing that makes a friend is trust. An innate belief in that something of the soul of a person which cannot be defined in words, but which must be felt and understood.

He who believes in his friend will defend that friend against all assaults.

And a genuine friend is so rare that he deserves defense at all times.

No one is either a failure or an unimportant human being so long as he can boast of at least one friend.

Another thing that makes a friend is patience. Patience that is proof against all irritations or defects of habit or character which the friend may show. Just bear in mind the human frailty of us all.

If you like to think of your friend when absent, or to encourage him in his work whenever you can, he surely has something that will return both appreciation and inspiration to you at times when you would like to have given back what he took.

Genuineness is the trade-mark of the true friend. And you don't have to explain that term.

SIDELIGHTS

ON Greene County History

OLD CHILLICOthe

Old Chillicothe, the site which is now occupied by the peaceful village of Oldtown, was one of the chief villages of the Shawnee Indians.

This town, bofer the entrance of the paleface in to the country which later became Greene County was one of the largest "cities" in the Ohio country, numbering about 1,100. Beautifully situated in the broad valley of the Little Miami River, it occupied a place of rare beauty. A lovely prairie stretched away to the west, bounded by a range of wooded hills. On the north meandered the Little Miami.

Old Chillicothe was one of the terminal points of the many Indian "thoroughfares" which penetrated the forest fastnesses of the land north of the Ohio. Here at the council house, which occupied the site of the present school house of Oldtown, Black Fish, Tecumseh and the hated renegades, Simon Girty, McKee and the Scotchman, Dixon, met in council with the warriors of the Shawnees nation and planned marauding expeditions against the white settlements of Kentucky.

To this historic old place the grand old pioneers, Simon Kenton and Daniel Boone, and many other less famous backwoodsmen were brought as captives.

A friend and I shelled out for "The Big Parade" the other night, and right behind us was a woman who spelled out every word of every caption. She had a beautiful voice—like a ferry horn. She even threw in some highlights in the way of comment on the acting.

I was looking around for the nearest exit when my friend grasped my arm. I turned to find him stuffing something in his ears.

"Here," he said, handing me a roll of absorbent cotton. "I always carry it."

New York is the city that never sleeps.

The other morning I fully expected to catch the metropolis dozing when I stepped out on Fourteenth Street for a snack of coffee at 4:15. This is what I found on a single block:

Nine taxis, rattling along—three cruising, six with fares. One thundering street car, clanging away, full of people going somewhere. Two cops in a filver. Three or four laborers, swinging along to work. Two charwomen, going home to bed or to get breakfast for their babies. One young man carrying an armful of books. One young woman, gazing into a clothing store window. A boy, trundling something in a little wagon, covered with burlap. Two cats, doing the round of trash barrels. A floater, heading for the subway to get warm. A man

Let laughter ring and let the mirth go on,
Be wise today, catch beauty when you can.
The clouds roll up and soon the sun is gone,
Tomorrow care shall bid you play the man.

Be not deceived by mirth and sunny skies,
Think not that with you always they will stay.
Be warned by life that pleasure quickly flies,
Somewhere the tasks are waiting down the way.

Keep well in mind the care which must befall,
Have courage ready ever for the test.
Stand up to life, prepared to face it all,
'Tis not by mirth but duty man is blest.

The flowers of pleasure hurry out to reap,
But brave the cares of life with equal grace.
Today you laugh; tomorrow you may weep
So run the world in which you hold a place.

Then let not pleasure tell you it is all,
All that life holds of value in its span.
There is a joy, when darkening shadows fall
In having stood to care and played the man.

East Side - West Side

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

New Yorkers have a quick, direct way of solving problems—even such national problems as what to do when you happen to sit next to some one who reads movie titles aloud. These loud-speakers are occasionally found even at the big movie shows, where the price of a movie seat is $2.00 plus war tax.

A friend and I shelled out for "The Big Parade" the other night, and right behind us was a woman who spelled out every word of every caption. She had a beautiful voice—like a ferry horn. She even threw in some highlights in the way of comment on the acting.

who might have been anything from a bill collector to an insurance salesman. A fruit peddler. A party of girls and men in evening dress, entering Childs for a late supper.

This at 4:15 a.m.! Try to catch New York napping some night—and you'll find that from the Bowery to Spuyten Duyvil she's got one eye open.

The stomachs of New Yorkers will soon be the most muscular in the world, from bumping against the subway turnstiles. Even the roaring old Elevated Lines have these abdomen obstacles now, and folks who travel every day on the underground or the overhead are outgrowing their first torsal tenderness.

I saw a great comedy act the other day in the Fourteenth Street station of the East Side subway. One of the gates had jammed and was as solid as the wall of China. One after another, the unsuspecting passengers walked into it and received a knock-out blow in the solar plexus. I may as well admit I took one myself before I got wise.

Nothing but Dempsey's glove has the wallop of a dead turnstile. Ooof.

THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Modish Mitzi MITZI GETS SOME FACTS NOT GEOGRAPHICAL Jay V. Jay

"Well, Mitzi, we are nearing Omaha," says Dad to his daughter hoping to feed her some geographical facts about the country they are touring. So far he hasn't been very successful. He notices however, that Mitzi is wearing a new felt hat rimmed with grosgrain ribbon. A new hat for very city and they have visited about ten already.

"At Omaha a great deal of grain is shipped," Dad reads on to heedless ears. The lady coming up the aisle is wearing a printed silk dress with a jabot side to it. It extends from the neck across the blouse to the opposite side of the waist. "A very clever way to break the straight line of a dress," Mitzi remarks.

"Omaha," continues Dad, "is known for its stockyards,"—reading from the circular. He does not notice that Mitzi is more attentive to passing styles than she is to statistics. The jabot front of this dress that is passing is interesting for it falls in surplus fashion. That hunch Mitzi had about the popularity of jabot styles is right.

Mitzi has such confidence in their smartness that she wears one herself. It's a moire silk with embroidered jabot with a narrow collar. Notice the sleeves, please. Long, narrow cuffs and a puff above them. "What city is this?" questions Mitzi. "Omaha," reiterates Dad sort of hopelessly. "I've been reading to you about it for the last half hour."

Central High Football Activities Will Start Soon

CAPTAIN MARSHALL AND COACH KOLB TO LAUNCH PRACTICES

Thirteen Veterans To Form Nucleus Of 1926 Squad

Captain Max Marshall, right end in 1925 and with two years of experience behind him, will lead the Central High School football team through a difficult schedule this fall, seeking to return to Central the high honors that the teams of 1921 and 1922 achieved when the eleven played through the season without a defeat the first year and only one setback during the succeeding season.

Coach Vic Kolb and Captain Marshall will probably issue the first call for candidates for the 1926 eleven next week. It will be the former Ohio Wesleyan star's second year as Central's athletic director.

Next week is expected to inaugurate concerted action toward training. In addition to the expected freshman crop of candidates, Central this year will have thirteen veterans to draw from.

Besides Captain Marshall other letter men who will return include Butts, Higgins, Tull, Smith, Vance, Morton, Scott, Graham, Maddox, Clemens, Rakoff and Doak.

Central's big games this year will be against Withrow High, Cincinnati, Springfield and Wilmington. Withrow and Greenville are under two-year agreements. Four games have been scheduled for home and five away with the possibility another home game may be added making ten in all.

Central will meet Withrow at Cincinnati October 29 in the feature number of the schedule. The Cincinnati school has won the football championship of Greater Cincinnati for a number of years straight and the "Tigers" are about the class of southern Ohio.

O. S. and S. O. Home opens the Central season September 24 at Cox Memorial Athletic Field and McClellan High, of Greenfield, follows here October 1. Then Central comes face to face with a schedule that should keep any team busy.

On successive weeks Greenville and Washington C. H., are played away from home, October 8 and October 15. Then comes Troy, Withrow, Springfield, Urbana and Wilmington in the order named. All these teams have a reputation of being able to put fear into the heart of most any team and for their ability to put up a stiff fight in a strenuous game.

For the nucleus of his team Coach Kolb has the thirteen seasoned veterans out of an original squad. Last year of about twenty-five. Of these at least eight can be classified as regular members of the 1925 eleven. They are Smith, and Vance in the backfield; Morton, Marshall and Doak ends; Clemens, center; Rakoff, guard; and Graham, tackle.

Central's grid mentor will be forced to develop a quarterback due to the graduation of Bob Finley. Another half-back is also needed as well as a guard and tackle. For the rest, the remaining positions are well taken care of.

Central's complete 1926 schedule follows:

- Sept. 24—O. S. and S. O. Home here.
Oct. 1—Greenfield here.
Oct. 8—Greenfield away.
Oct. 15—Washington C. H. away.
Oct. 22—Troy here.
Oct. 29—Withrow (Cincinnati) away.
Nov. 4—Springfield away.
Nov. 12—Urbana here.
Nov. 19—Wilmington away.

TILTONS WILL MEET THURSDAY NIGHT

Aspiring members of the Tilton's "33" football eleven donned their grid togs and engaged in the first actual practice session of the season Sunday morning at Ringer's Park on Cincinnati Ave. Forty candidates including a majority of the veterans of last year's eleven responded to the initial call which inaugurated the football season in Xenia.

Members of the team will hold a meeting at the Xenia Fire Department Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. As this is an important meeting a large representation is asked to be present.

QUOIT TOURNAMENT FINALS WEDNESDAY

Champion quoit pitcher of the city may be determined Wednesday night.

Final rounds in the second annual city tournament of the Xenia Quoit Club will be played off at the club grounds on E. Market St. Wednesday night beginning at 7 o'clock.

A field of eleven pitchers is contesting for the coveted title with at least six entrants remaining in the running for the honor.

The tourney was inaugurated last week and one-third of play has already been completed.

Local tournament will also serve as a preliminary test of strength to the Montgomery County Fair tournament in which a number of local tossers intend to enter. It will begin next week in Dayton.

DIES ON STREET

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 1.—The body of an unidentified woman who died in a hospital after she collapsed on the street here was still unclaimed today. Her death was attributed to heart disease.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS SEPTEMBER 7

Schedule for the Xenia Bowling League during the 1926-27 season has been completed.

The season will be officially launched with a double-header the night of September 7.

Bulcka and Ford will occupy the alleys the first shift and Tilton's "33" will meet the Arcade team in the second match.

Schedule for September 8 will bring together the Artesians and Greene County Lumber Co., McCurran Bros., and Critteron will meet September 9 and Graham Paints and Candy Kits September 10.

Games will be played on every night of the week thereafter except on Saturday nights. All matches start promptly at 7:30 o'clock.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ENTERS HOME STRETCH WITH THREE WESTERN CLUBS FIGHTING FOR TOP POST

Cardinals' sensational double victory over Pittsburgh in the Tuesday twin bill and the stingy defeat of the Reds by Chicago complicated the National League flag race as it has never been complicated before.

With three clubs virtually tied for first place, the Cubs not far in the rear and the teams entering the home stretch, one of the snappiest finishes of history is in prospect.

The pennant race is entirely a Western club affair this year, when the smoke of Tuesday's bitter battles had cleared away, the Cardinals were found to have gained two full games on the Pirates, moving into top position with a three-point advantage over Cincinnati.

Although Chicago again took Cincinnati's scalp, the Reds retained second place by the scant margin of one point over the Pirates. Nor is Chicago to be discounted as a pennant contender. Only four games behind Pittsburgh, the Cubs have a record of nine victories in their last ten games and are rapidly forging to the front.

There is a possibility that the Reds may benefit Wednesday for the team has an off day in its schedule. Pirates and Cardinals meet again while Manager Hendricks' lads are resting up for the crucial three-game series with the Cardinals at Cincinnati Friday. Thursday the Reds play Pittsburgh one game. These four games may be a turning point in the race.

The Reds met their jinx again Tuesday—the Chicago Cubs, and lost 1 to 0 in the most magnificent pitching duel of the season between Percy Jones and Jackie May.

Jakie, hurled great ball for eight rounds but slipped up in the ninth and permitted one run, the only

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Miller Huggins, of all the major league managers, can face another season with less worry than his rivals.

The manager of the prospective American League champions is perhaps the only pilot in this year who is not faced with the necessity of a reorganization.

Strange things can happen in one year when the luck breaks. This time last season, instead of being out in front, the Yankees were firmly established in the second division and there seemed to be little hope for the future.

The Babe wasn't doing any too well, the pitchers weren't going and there was a huge hole in the middle of the infield. Huggins knew that he had to find a short stop and a second baseman and luck was with him. He found Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig and they meant the difference between the second division and a pennant.

Any ball club can use a good pitcher and Huggins would not turn down a chance to get another experienced hurler and he also could use a good young catcher, but the club would not be lost without either one.

The Philadelphia Athletics are fairly well fixed with playing material and Connie Mack may not make any important changes. He believes that his team is a prospective champion and that it failed this year only because of a lack of experience.

The St. Louis Browns, which were such a disappointment this season, may change managers as George Sisler admits that he is discouraged and wouldn't object if the owners decided to get another manager. If Sisler is relieved, however, he probably will be traded as he said sometime ago that if he gave up the job he would leave the club.

The annual report that Ty Cobb does not want his job at the helm of the Detroit Tigers has been around again this year. Cobb is reaching the end of his active career and it is understood that he wants to get out of the game and get into private business. If Cobb does decide to retire it is understood that Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto International League Club, will succeed him.

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, has announced definitely that he will not handle the club on the field next year and it is understood that Max Carey, former Pittsburgh captain, may be given the job.

Jack Fournier and Zach Wheat, two veteran Brooklyn stars, who had been considered as candidates to succeed Robby probably will be traded, it is understood.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has intimated very strongly that he is going to build over his club. He wants an outfielder to succeed Irish Meusel and a young catcher. He could also use some pitchers.

The Cincinnati Reds, failing this year because of infield weakness, will try to find a new shortstop and another third baseman. The team has plenty of good pitching but Jack Hendricks blamed the collapse of the team on a shortstop weakness, figuring that it cost the team at least nine games.

The Washington Senators will have to rebuild at several positions and Bucky Harris may decide to trade a couple of players who haven't been getting along

IOWA FACES STIFF PROGRAM BECAUSE BACKFIELD LOST

By IRWIN L. FEMRITE (United Press Staff Correspondent)

IOWA CITY, Ia., Sept. 1.—(U.P.)—Shattered by the loss of the backfield quartet of Don Graham, Wesley Fry, Schirmer and Dauber, and the line giants—Krasuski, tackle and Griffin, center, and with the star Dick Roney now on the list of Alumni, Iowa's football team, under the directing eye of Coach Burt Ingwersen, faces a stiff program of reconstruction.

With Cowboy Nick Kutsch suspended, and attempting to regain admission to the university through work at summer school, the future of the squad largely resembles a huge question mark. If announcement is made at the opening of the season that Kutsch is eligible, a sigh of relief may be heard about the world to issue from the corn belt.

Bab Kuhel, known principally in his college days as a hurdler, but back in the old high school days at Cedar Rapids an all-scholastic backfield man, may take up the burden of the attack if Kutsch is not allowed to carry the ball. Both lads are fair punters, but Graham's loss will be felt especially in the booting department.

Skeels, freshman captain in 1924, who left school, will be back for the season; so will Don Smith, a reserve last year. Others who will work out for regular backfield posts are Byers, Phillips, Flake and Armil, of last year's freshman squad.

Capt. Smith will play at end, his old position. Brown will probably be used to plug the hole left by Griffin, and Chatterton will attempt to fill Krasuski's gap. Both these lads juggle the scale at more than 200. Keel, in spring practice looked as though he had received a regular guard's job for himself. Rice, irregular regular last season, should occupy Roney's end job.

LEAGUE PRAISED BY BRIAND ON LEAVING TO ATTEND MEETING

(Aristide Briand, many times premier of France, famous as the "man of Locarno" and a champion of the League of Nations, on the eve of his departure to Geneva this evening has written the following exclusive statement for the United Press. Briand wrote in response to a query regarding his attitude toward the reports of various efforts to sabotage the league. Such a formal declaration while holding office is believed to be without precedent for Briand. "The defense of the league," says Briand, "is the defense of peace itself.")

PARIS, Sept. 1.—The League of Nations constitutes at the present moment the surest guarantee of peace in the world.

It has already demonstrated its value as an instrument of peace in Europe. It is sufficient to recall the efficacy of its intervention in one of the gravest cases when it brought about the peaceful settlement of a conflict between nations which might have caused a rupture of the European equilibrium.

Everybody sincerely attached to the work for peace and convinced of the necessity of a common effort for the safeguard of an identical civilization and an identical ideal of humanity owe it to themselves to demonstrate very clearly their solidarity and service to this task by defending at any cost the future of the league and by sacrificing to it, if need be, their momentary pre-occupations of self-interest and self-interest.

Defense of the league is defense of peace itself. I have firmly decided to place at its service the best of my intelligence and of my strength. I look on the road we have travelled and find in the results achieved reasons for confidence and faith. I am leaving Paris more than ever filled with the sentiments which always have guided me on the way to Geneva.

I do not hide from myself the difficulties of the obstacles which remain to be surmounted in order to complete and vivify the work begun at Locarno. I know that certain criticism will not be lacking. I am well aware that peace cannot be made a reality without unpleasant experiences. But the object to be obtained is well worth the trouble. And I see that a great majority of the peoples of the world look with sympathy toward the league.

I know now how far I can count on the aid of the most tried and true members of the league. Their loyalty and their courage are the best guarantee of victory at a time when for the defense of an identical cause, all must show sincerity, good will and disinterest.

NEW METHOD ERADICATES WRINKLES LIKE MAGIC

It has been found that a simple tarboon mixture, spread over the entire face, acts almost magically upon even the deepest wrinkles and crowfeet. It produces the natural rejuvenating effect of massage, only to a more marked degree. The danger of loosening the skin or muscles, as in unscientific or too frequent massage, is eliminated, no rubbing being necessary. On the other hand, the skin and underlying tissues are so invigorated they become much firmer, and the skin's texture is so changed it again assumes its original clear, smooth, velvety appearance.

If you will procure a package of powdered tarboon from your druggist, mix a spoonful with a spoonful of lemon juice, apply with the fingers, and sit down before your mirror, you will see the wrinkles and sacs disappear, in less than fifteen minutes! You will be amazed, to say the least. Tarboon of course is perfectly harmless. And certainly it is inexpensive; a treatment costs less than three cents.

"Not Possible To Classify"

By Mack Sauer

Did you ever register for a room at a Y. M. C. A.? The questionnaire they give you is worse than the one handed you when you apply for a job with a large manufacturing concern. As I recall, the questions were something like these:

What is your age? Are you married or still enjoying life?

How long has it been since you wrote Mother Goose rhymes? What is your occupation, if any?

Do you chew, drink or swallow your food whole?

Do you take sugar in your coffee? How did your garters look this morning? How would they look around your neck?

Do you sleep on your right or left side, or on a bed?

Have you read the rules on the opposite side of this blank? Have you red pajamas?

NO MORE

"No home made bread is made," said Joe Heskitt, "The women now days Have no hairpins to test it."

PRINCE RUPPRECHT

ALEX J. GROESBECK

Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, urged cancellation of all war debts. Independent Government bureaus should be placed under cabinet members, Representative William Wood, of Indiana, declared. Who'll Be Next To Join Ranks of Film Dead?

Who will be the next film celebrity to answer the Great Director's order, "cut!"? Hollywood, during these days while the shock of Valentino's death is still fresh, feels the question is one that comes close to every studio. Within the past few years death has exacted a heavy toll from the films. Among those who were stricken down at the peak of their careers were Barbara La Marr, as the result of a breakdown, Lucille Rickson, who died at 17, Martha Mansfield, burned to death while on location, Wallie Reid, who died making a brave fight against the power of drugs, Marguerite Marsh, a pneumonia victim and Olive Thomas at 22, killed by poisoning in Paris.

Fingerprint Tightens Net on Stevens

The fingerprints above—the one on the left from police records and the one on the right from a card found propped against the body of Rev. Edward Hall—were said to place Willie Stevens at the scene of the Hall-Mills murder. Experts pointed out six points of identity in court, and bail was denied Stevens, brother of Rev. Hall's widow, and Henry de la Carpender, accused with him of the murder.

The Gilded Rose

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

Rosilyn, loving her husband, knows he is still in love with

LYDIA HARBROOK, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway.

RUPERT BRISCOE, a dissipated man of the world, has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and she and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby Rosilyn and Briscoe will see a great deal of each other, and Lydia will have a chance to exert her wiles upon Landis. The plan works, and Landis, finding himself often alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more.

Van Vorst, however, hungering for her love, decides to use

MARIETTA FERNANDEZ, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a scheme. These two come to New York where Marietta begins to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

In the country at the Ridgeway place, Rosilyn, in a fever of jealousy and anxiety over the protracted disappearance of her husband seeks the solace of the countryside. After an exciting adventure she is rescued by Briscoe who tells a "fishy" story to account for his proximity to the scene. Soon after Landis effects a reconciliation with Rosilyn and becomes his old lovable self. The latter discovers damning evidence against Lydia and exerts her power to secure the upper hand—in the city meanwhile Marietta feels her power over Briscoe declining.

A QUEER CONVERSATION

The following day, Marietta sent word to the theatre that she was indisposed, and shadowed Rupert Briscoe.

Half demented with pain and jealousy, the foreign girl had resolved to discover the name and nature of her rival.

By judicious tipping at his fashionable bachelor quarters she discovered from a porter that Mr. Briscoe had gone down to the country by private car.

"I heard him give the address to his chauffeur," the tipped one volunteered, obliging the Spanish beauty.

And he named the depot nearest to Royal Cliff.

Marietta, using a public call-box, telephoned the different New York termini until she learned what railroad station was her starting point.

She got her train, and two and a half hours later was on her way by taxi-cab to Royal Cliff.

Dismissing the auto a few hundred yards from the entrance gates, she warily went in by the back entrance, skirting the kitchen quarters, and coming out unexpectedly in an old herbal garden.

A girl in a quaint frock was in that garden, stooping over a bed of lavender.

She was a sweet-faced girl, with kind and really lovely eyes, thought distraught Marietta, when young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway raised her head.

"Did you want to see anyone?" The girl's tones were low and sweet. "Have you lost your way?"

"D'you mind me being here? Am I intruding?"

The other smiled.

"No, indeed. I suppose you've come to see one of my guests. I've so many in the house just now—and so many people coming and going—that it's difficult to recognize and remember everybody."

"Is he here, then?" Marietta's burning eyes were on young Mrs. Ridgeway's face.

"He? Who?" Bewilderment came there.

Marietta answered dully, doggedly:

"The only man I ever loved."

The other girl seemed startled. Then she said, quietly and soothingly:

"Won't you come into the house and rest awhile? Won't you let me try to help you."

Marietta drew back.

"He would be furious with me. I couldn't."

Rosilyn wondered:

"Who is the mysterious 'he' who has so upset this girl? Can it possibly be that she is a friend of Landis?"

Aloud she said, gently and sympathetically:

"It hurts me to see anyone in trouble, and be able to do nothing. Confidence often brings relief, and if you would confide in me, maybe between us we could do something."

Marietta gave the speaker an odd look. Her mood changed again and she answered, brusquely:

"You're the last person in the world I could confide in. Well I'll be going," went on Marietta dully, hunching her slender shoulders in foreign shrug. "I'd no right to come here. I hated you before I came. I was jealous of you. I—I wished you ill. But now that I've seen you, all that has died. I wish—" she hesitated and then held out her hand. "I wish you'd say there is no ill-feeling and wish me luck."

Rosilyn Ridgeway looked searchingly at the dancing girl. How Landis must have hurt her! What desperate thoughts, what torn emotions, lay behind the brusque manners of this foreign creature?

"Wish me luck?" reiterated Marietta, her great, tragic eyes on the bride's face. "It isn't selfish of me to ask it, because there's so much happiness in your own life that you wouldn't miss one slice of it!"

"I wonder..." Rosilyn was almost unconscious that she spoke aloud. "Is anybody on this earth really happy?" Then suddenly feeling an unaccountable confidence in her listener, she went on—

"One is lucky if one has 'moments,' don't you think? They're like a dream, they pass so quickly. And the reality afterwards can be so very painful. But the big 'moments' make the rest of life worth while."

"I have had my 'moments,'" said Marietta with a queer intensity. "They are the only things that count. Without them I would kill myself. Because life would be meaningless. You understand?"

Rosilyn bowed her head.

"I do understand." And then she added, in a mood of recklessness engendered by a queer sympathy for this strange creature:

"If anyone I know has hurt you, please believe me that I'm sorry. Believe, too, that I know only too well the meaning of pain and loneliness."

Marietta gripped her hand.

"You're a good woman. The kind I might have been, maybe, if I'd ever had a square deal. I bear you no grudge."

Then, with a swift gracefulness that her years of dancing had given her, she was gone and Rosilyn alone, full of wonderment and vague surmise.

That it was Landis, her own husband, who was the 'raison d'être' of the foreign girl's unhappiness, young Mrs. Ridgeway did not for a moment doubt.

She had heard the rumors. She had listened very recently to Lydia Harbrook's story. Sorry for Marietta—and for giving—she was sick at heart. Were there no limits to the humiliation that a man could heap upon her?

And, after all, she was his wife. Tomorrow—Another Mystery

Wonder How King Canute Would Act Today?

KING CANUTE, so history tells us, once sat by the sea and, in fierce tones, called upon the tide to stop.

In a very few moments the tide showed its obedience by wetting the Royal train. The moral of this little story is: "You can't resist the irresistible."

THE merchant who fails to advertise, in these days of hard and strenuous competition, is attempting to resist the irresistible. If he isn't careful he's going to be "all wet."

The tide of business follows the line of least resistance and GOES WHERE IT IS INVITED. It will flow past your place of business toward the advertiser and your commands to stop it will be as futile as those of ancient King Canute.

IF YOUR COMPETITOR ADVERTISES, CAN YOU AFFORD NOT TO?

GAS BUGGIES or HEM AND AMY—In The Nick Of Time

THE MYSTERY OF WHY THE CACTUS OIL CO WAS SO EAGER TO PAY

HER THREE TIMES WHAT HER OIL STOCK COST

HER, IN ORDER TO GET IT BACK, IS EASILY EXPLAINED

WHEN AMY CONSULTS HER FRIEND, ROBERT CANFIELD, THE STOCK BROKER

HE WAS VERY PERSISTENT ABOUT BUYING IT EVERY TIME I'D REFUSE, HE'D RAISE HIS OFFER. FINALLY IT GOT SO HIGH IT MADE ME LEERY, AND I DECIDED TO CONSULT YOU, MR. CANFIELD.

NO WONDER THEY WANTED IT. THIS STOCK IS WORTH $100,000 AT LEAST. THEY DISCOVERED VERY VALUABLE POTASH DEPOSITS ON THEIR LANDS. THAT STUFF IS RARE AND WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.

IT SEEMS LIKE A DREAM TO HAVE ALL THAT MONEY. THEN YOU'LL TAKE CARE OF SELLING IT AND PAYING THOSE PETRIED GAS STOCKHOLDERS WHO ARE THREATENING TO SUE THEM.

JUST LEAVE IT TO ME. I'LL SETTLE THE THING SO QUICK IT'LL STUN THEM.

MR. HIRAM, THAT INSURANCE MAN, IS HERE ABOUT YOUR POLICY.

HERE'S AN ODD CASE, HIRAM. A LADY, WHOSE HUSBAND LOST EVERY CENT, RECEIVES A SUDDEN WINDFALL THAT'LL PUT 'EM ON THEIR FEET AGAIN. HOW'S THAT FOR LUCK, EH?

A VERY UNUSUAL CASE, MR. CANFIELD. THAT REMINDS ME! SUPPOSING YOU WERE TO FAIL, AND ON YOUR WAY HOME THAT NIGHT YOU LOST OUT IN A GUESSING CONTEST, WITH A TAXI DRIVER, WOULD YOU WANT YOUR WIFE TO BE DEPENDENT ON LUCK?
